Big Philadelphia Factory Destroyed, Employes Burned and Trampled in Mad Rush---Many Jump from Windows.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—More than twenty persons, most of them girls, are believed to have perished in a fire which broke out just before noon in the four-story Ellis factory building at Third and Walnut streets.

Five bodies have been recovered, many were injured by jumping from windows as the flames raged behind them, and others were trampled in a mad rush for life.

The Dead and Dying.

The dead, so far as known, are:

FLORENCE SCHWARTZ, No. 710 South Third street; died in Jefferson Hospital.

Unidentified man.

Those known to be dying of their injuries are:

PHILIP PASSLO, thirty-three, burned.

Unidentified white woman, burned.

Unidentified negress, burned.

Girls Leap for Life.

The fire is believed to have started in the floor occupied by C. E. Shedaker & Sons, shirtwaist manufacturers. Four other firms occupied the other stories.

Within a few minutes after the flames had been discovered the entire building was in flames, and inside of half of an hour it was a seething mass of flames.

At 12:30 the police said five bodies had been taken from the ruins and that probably a score more had perished. Practically every ambulance in the downtown part of Philadelphia was called into service to care for the injured. Trapped on the upper floors, many of the employes jumped, in spite of the commands of the police and firemen.

Terrible Stampede for Exits.

When the first cry of warning rang the hallways they packed in solid groups through the building there were between 150 and 200 girls and women in the various floors. In one instant they were changed from an orderly band of working women into a frenzied mass of human beings fighting for their lives.

Panic swept all floors at once. Biting, scratching, kicking, tearing, the scores rushed for every window and door into the court of the majority election it was announced this afternoon that James J. Storrow had made a net gain of twenty-three votes. Late for the City Council made a net gain of nineteen votes, reducing Buckley's plurality to 168.

The recount is proceeding slowly, and the Election Commissioners believe it will not be finished before Friday. The counters began work this morning on the twelve uncounted precincts of wards 11, 14, 15 and 16. The next step was to canvass the nine precincts of Ward 19 simultaneously, and it was hoped that the fifteen precincts of Ward 20—the largest in the city—and the twelve precincts of Ward 21 could be finished before night.

The Election Commissioners expected that forty-eight precincts could be finished during the day, leaving thirty-six to be counted to-morrow.

Charles F. Choate, Jr., appeared again to-day for Storrow. Chairman Minton of the commission said that the 1,250 election officers who worked Tuesday, January 11, would be paid to-morrow at City Hall. About $10,000 will be disbursed.

TWO "ELECTROCUTED," RETURN TO WORK

LYNN, Jan. 19.—It takes 1,500 volts of electricity to murder in State prison, but two men sustained 2,200 and 3,540 volts, respectively, within three days and escaped serious harm. To-day, while climbing a telephone pole at Aley and Shepard streets, Fremont Wallace Smith caught hold of a wire charged with 2,200 volts and dropped into a snow bank. His right hand was burned, but he was able to leave the hospital in a short time. On Monday James McLeod, an electrician, sustained 3,500 volts.

PALLADINO A FRAUD, SAYS MUNSTERBERG

Professor Hugo Munsterberg, the eminent psychologist of Harvard, and one of the most famous students of spsychology in the world, declares that Madame Palladino, who has been giving table-lifting exhibitions before select audiences in Boston and New York, is a fraud.

Professor Munsterberg will publish in detail by the form of a magazine article the result of his findings arising out of a private examination he made of the famous medium.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, describing his experiences, the Harvard scholar said:

"This woman is a deception. I made a private examination of Madame Palladino, and I caught her in a number of tricks which were simply the most spiritualistic manifestations to which they are so well accustomed. The audience is suffering from hysteria of the worst kind.

How She Deceived.

In my examination of her I saw nothing unusual, which would cause me to believe in her so-called spiritualistic powers. The tricks in which I detected her were those reasons that previous investigators were deceived by her is that they were all persons of great suggestibility, and were acted upon by Madame Palladino's suggestion.

The woman possesses great suggestive powers for certain people. The forseeing which those observers saw coming from her forehead were merely the result of their great suggestive power. Her principal trick, that of table-lifting, known to scientists as levitation, was done with her own hands. This was shown by the fact that whenever the table lifted was in the air the weight of Madame Palladino increased. We made a photograph while she was in the act, and the photograph discloses the fact that she held the table with her hand. Again we tested her with the letter balances with the same result.

Conflict of Opinion.

There is a sharp conflict of opinion now in Harvard as the result of Madame Palladino's exhibitions. Professor William James believes that she is the possessor of unusual spiritualistic power, while Professor Munsterberg discounts and boldly asserts that she is a mere deceptionist. The publication of Dr. Munsterberg's magazine article will be awaited with the keenest interest.

GAVE INK BATH TO WRONG MAN

LYNN, Jan. 19.—Because he looked like a walking delegate of the Barbers' Union Philip Gash, a prominent real estate and insurance man, was transformed into a walking human blotter to-day when he walked into the barber shop of Pleiros Gash had heard the shop was for sale and went there to act as broker. The English vocabulary of the barber consists of "shave," "haircut," "shampoo" and "bay rum." Also "union." Gash does not remember just what he said but apparently it sounded like "union" because the next thing he knew he had muffed a water pitcher and Pleiros was pouring it on his very black head.

Face, on his hands and all over his clothing. Gash showed himself to a policeman and then to a justice, who fined him $5 and costs. They amounted to $7.50 and found that the barber had furnished the motive of his call. Gash then went back to sell his real estate.

GENOA BURGLAR SUSPECT IS HELD

Frederick J. Sullivan of No. 9 Knowlton street, Roxbury, was arraigned in $7,500 bail by Judge Burke in Police Court this afternoon, after he had leaped from the second story of the Hotel Tufts, No. 24 Province street, with 260 watters' checks in his pockets. Sullivan was caught by a policeman when he jumped and the police say he brought the checks were money. Judge Burke turned him over to a Superior Court officer on account of a prior charge of larceny.

BANDIT'S ARREST MAY SOLVE LAURA REGESTER DEATH

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 19.—In the arrest of Ernest Wilhelm Lorenz, the young self-confessed highwayman, who was to-day arraigned in the Eighth District Court in Johnson, charged with murdering aged Joseph Mann on January 8, the police of this city believe that they also have the slayer of pretty Laura Regester of evanston, whose fate has remained a mystery for months. Lorenz is charged with holding up more than a dozen people recently.

Laura Regester was killed almost on her wedding eve, and a ring and some gifts from her betrothed, were stolen from her body. She was found an eighth of a mile from her home and 350 feet from the highway on the morning of May 19 last. She had been choked to death after a terrific struggle for her life.

It was known that the young woman had taken the last car from Providence for her home in Cranston the night before. The highway she had to walk in to her home from the car was dark and lonely. The girl commonly walked in the middle of the road, but this night chose the side walk.

The next morning, when she was sought, her parasol and handbag were found by the side of the road. Her body was found in the open field, the grass of which had been left when her murderer had dragged her into the bushes. For two weeks the police searched a circle, ten miles in diameter, and the solution of the crime has been desquired of ever since.

Lorenz, who was arrested yesterday when Sanford Burton, a night telephone operator identified him as the man who had robbed him of his watch and eight dollars in North Providence, admits holding up Burton.

Lorenz to-day was arraigned in Johnson charged with being the highwayman who shot and killed Joseph Mann. Mann died last Saturday and his funeral is held to-day. George Williams was with Mann at the time and he is a witness.

Lorenz, who is twenty-eight, admits having guilty of some of the recent holdups which have terrorized this part of Rhode Island for the past month. He was identified to-day in Central Police station by fifteen-year-old Florence Ellis of Warwick, who accused him of attacking her on December 29.

LIBERALS SEE 100 MAJORITY IN NEXT HOUSE

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The Ministerialist majority in the new Parliament will be more than 100. This prediction was made to-day by one of the foremost of the Liberal leaders, and it was the general tenor of comment at the National Liberal Club. In spite of the net gain of 11 made by the Unionists at yesterday's polls the government leaders looked for an even better showing by the Liberals to-day than they have made in the total results so far, basing their expectations on the theory that the results thus far shown will decide hitherto unsettled constituencies and swing them to the government forces.

Four London and 76 provincial constituencies voted to-day. The majority of them were in the outlying counties, and the Unionists hope for further gains in them.

The party totals in the general election for the entire following up to 4 p. m. to-day stood: Unionists 124, Liberals 97, Laborites 21, Nationalists 12.

The first returns to-day showed one Unionist and three Nationalists returned unopposed. James McCausent, for East Antrim, was the Unionist and the others were Captain Donnelan for East Cork; Michael Meagher for North Kilkenny and Edward Barry for South Cork.

The Nationalists made further gains with these unopposed returns. J. O'Down, South Sligo; John E. Smyth, South Leitrim; W. Doris, West Mayo; J. P. Farrell, North Longford, and Samuel Young, East Cavan.

PROBE MILLION FRAUD CHARGE IN LAND CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The House Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department began to-day an investigation of the charges made by Representative Hitchcock that the $1,000,000 fund to protect the public domain against frauds had been improperly used by the general land office in the matter of buying expensive furniture and employment of useful clerks and the doubling of salaries of others.

Land Commissioner Dennett was the first witness. He explained to the committee when asked about the statement that part of the fund had been used to pay telegraph tolls on newspaper articles sent to the commissioner that he was able to find the two such despatches. Dennett, when asked to explain the charge of appointing inefficient special agents, said that it was not improbable that a few inefficient men might have been appointed.

The committee adjourned at noon until to-morrow, when it is expected Secretary Ballinger will be heard.

CHARGE BREAK ON CLEW FROM LETTER

Oliver Hartley, the police say, broke into the office of the Eastern Beef Company, at No. 8 North street, last night and dropped a letter addressed to him before or after robbing the till of $15. The letter was turned over to the Detective bureau by the police. Patrolman Patterson went to No. 54 North street, the address on the letter, and found Hartley in bed. He was held for the Grand Jury in $1,200 by Judge Farmer.

CIVIC FEDERATION TALKS RAILROADS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—This forenoon's session of the National Civic Federation conference on uniform state legislation was devoted to addresses on regulation of railway and public utilities, commercial law and interstate extradition. Among the speakers on railways were Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Martin S. Decker, President of the National Association of Railway Commissioners, George R. Cortelyou, Charles W. Needham of Washington and Stephen B. Allen of Kansas.

TAFT TO RISK RE-ELECTION IN KEEPING FAITH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Here are the demands of President Taft, which he is ready to force at the cost of losing a second term:

The limitation of the use of the injunction power by the federal courts.

Amendment of the railway rate law and of the laws regulating interstate commerce.

The establishment of postal savings banks.

Separate statehood for Arizona and New Mexico.

Two of the policies he has already adopted are admittedly matters of remedial difference of opinion, and therefore are no test of Republicanism. They are the conservation of the national resources and the federal incorporation act proposed in the recent special message on trusts.

The President's aim is to bring about the fulfilment of the promises in the platform on which he was elected and the pledges made in the campaign of 1908. It can be stated that the President is not influenced by the fear of retirement at the end of his term.

At the same time, he realizes that the issue between the insurgents and the administration is clear cut, and considers a break with Cannon and Aldrich would be a catastrophe at this time. The President has thrown down the gauntlet to the insurgents, telling them that the rebel Republicans who vote with the Democrats to keep Representatives Rainey and James as the minority members of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation will be regarded as in direct opposition to the administration.

The first active clash over the President's recommendations will be precipitated when it comes at the hearing granted to railroads by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The dates for these hearings were set to-day for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. The President's recommendations on the amending of the interstate commerce law will be threshed out then.

TWO HOUSES IN $4,000,000 STOCK CRASH

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Failures of two big stock exchange firms, involving a loss estimated at $4,000,000, resulted to-day from a violent break in Columbus & Hocking railroad stock. The first to fail was the New York Stock Exchange firm of Lathrop, Haskins & Co., at No. 60 Broadway. They suspended following a break of 85½ a share, which occurred within one hour.

This suspension was followed by the announcement that J. M. Tyler & Co., at No. 41 Broadway had suspended.

For several months there has been a pool in the stock, which has been manipulated from 65½ to 85. The high point was reached about two weeks ago. The Columbus & Hocking Valley Coal and Iron Company has dukes of coal and white clay in central Alabama. Recently it has been seeking capital and disappointment in this connection caused the failure of to-day.

H. S. Haskins is a member of the Lathrop firm, is president of the Columbus & Hocking Valley Coal and Iron Company.

LYNN COURTHOUSE PLAN IS OPPOSED

Essex County residents, 200 strong, came to the State House to-day to protest against establishing an additional County seat at Lynn. PARSON DOWNS FILES COUNTER DIVORCE SUIT

Rev. William W. Downs, better known as "Parson" Downs, the former pastor of the Roxbury Square Tabernacle, has brought suit against his wife, Mrs. Sophie Gertrude (Stanton) Downs, for divorce. The "Parson" charges his wife with unfaithfulness, and names four men.

Mrs. Downs is now living in Winsor, N. H. Last Summer she created a sensation when she brought suit for divorce against her husband. The papers were served on him in August. She charged him with cruel and abusive treatment. At first Mr. Downs said that he would not contest the action, later he declared that he would fight it to the end.

Miss Stanton and "Parson" Downs were married in February, 1907, after an acquaintance which began in a North Market street restaurant where the young woman had been employed as a waitress. It was Mr. Downs' second marriage, his first wife having died, leaving him with nine children, most of whom are older than their stepmother.

At the time of their marriage Miss Stanton was twenty-four years of age and Mr. Downs fifty-nine. Despite the difference in their ages it was believed that the match was happy. The couple began their wedded life in a pretty home at No. 498 Main street, Medford.

Since the first of last year, when they separated, Mr. Downs lived with a married daughter, Mrs. Harold M. Aiken, at No. 11 Liberty avenue, Medford, while Mrs. Downs went to Winsor, N. H., where she has friends.

Mr. Downs figured in a divorce suit previously, having his counsel at the Roxbury Square Tabernacle his congregation decided to dismiss him. His parishioners brought suit for divorce against his wife. The result was that the congregation finally decided to let the whole matter be settled by the real estate brokers.

Mr. Downs since then has been a member of the Union Congregational Church of South Framingham. His office was a worker in its Sunday school. She also played the organ at the services.

It was in the eighties that Mr. Downs first gained prominence. He was the pastor of the Roxbury Square Tabernacle when he was a young man. His church at that time was one of influence and with his eloquence he made an already strong congregation still more powerful.

312 ANIMALS ARE MERCIFULLY KILLED

At the January meeting of the directors of the American Humane Educational Society and the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, this afternoon, President Hill reported that the prosecuting agents of the society during the month, examined 4,802 animals, took 139 horses from work, and mercifully killed 312 horses and other animals. Three hundred and forty-five new Bands of Mercy were formed during the month, making a total of 10,081.

WELLESLEY RAISES $1,000 STRIKE FUND; ORDERS 1,000 WAISTS

Wellesley College girls to-day sent on $1,000 to help the cause of the shirtwaist makers' strike in New York. They also gave an order for 1,000 shirtwaists to be made by the girls' co-operative factory.

The order for the shirtwaists is the biggest thing done so far for the 30,000 girls on strike, for it insures them a co-operative factory where hundreds of them will find work with fairer wages, no sweating and union conditions.

Wellesley's big gift insures the gift offered by Miss Anne Morgan who offered to build, equip and finance a shirtwaist shop for the girls if someone would come forward and give an order for the first 1,000 waists.

The little nameless striker, the fourteen-year-old girl whose name must be kept secret because of the fear that she will be placed on the blacklist by the New York employers, won her Wellesley audience as she did her more cosmopolitan gathering at Faneuil Hall Saturday night.

The meeting was held at the college, with Miss Emily Balch, a professor at the college, presiding. Miss Vida Scudder, another professor at the college, also spoke. Miss Rose Schneiderman and the little nameless girl were speaking before the Boston trade unions when word came to them that the Wellesley girls would like to hear from them. Miss Schneiderman couldn't go; she had other engagements to speak, so she decided to send the pretty little nameless girl whose story has moved all her audiences to tears. Miss Mary A. Best accompanied the little girl and introduced her to the audience.

When the speaking was over a little Wellesley girl, daughter of one of the wealthiest families of the Middle West, arose and tried to speak to her classmates. She was so small that she was obliged to mount a chair.

"We should not be content to listen and do nothing," she said. "Though we are all the daughters of rich or well-to-do parents, we should act for these strikers. I move that we donate $1,000 for the girl shirtwaist strikers in New York and place an order for 1,000 shirtwaists so that Miss Anne Morgan may open her co-operative factory for these girls."

TWO HUNDRED IN SHIRTWAIST RIOTS CLASH WITH POLICE

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—More than 200 girls and men took part in several riots to-day in front of the shop of the Bijou Shirtwaist Company at No. 536 Broadway, between non-union shirtwaist makers and delegations representing members of the Ladies' Shirtwaist Makers' Union, who are out on strike.

Policemen and private detectives became involved in the trouble, and when it was finally ended dozens of girls had bruised faces and torn clothes. Four girl pickets were arrested and arraigned in the Centre Street Police Court.

FORESTRY TALK BY GOV. QUIMBY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—State control of water powers was demanded by Governor Wilson of Kentucky at to-day's session of the conference of governors. Governor A. J. Pothier of Rhode Island occupied the chair.

The address of Governor Henry B. Quinby of New Hampshire on "Forests," with discussion which followed, occupied practically all of the morning session.

Wilson of Kentucky, after declaring that he was in sympathy with forest preservation, said he differed with the policy of some members of Congress and public men who believe that the navigable streams of the country should be completely controlled by the national government.

"The streams of the States belong to the States and should be controlled by the States so far as water power is concerned," [illegible] he declared. "I am in favor of the States owning the water power of the streams outright. Revenues from that source alone would pay all the expenses of government. The national government should have nothing to do with controlling the water power of the streams."

SCORES POLICE IN THEFT CASE

"It is a shame for the police to arrest two boys like these and allow a den of iniquity and vice like Piscopo's go untouched," said Attorney William R. Scarrton to-day to Judge Burke in Municipal Criminal Court.

John Zaboli, twenty-two, and Charles Cohen, twenty-one, both of the North End, were charged with the larceny of $18 from Herbert Cook and Carl Peterson in an alleyway back of Piscopo's restaurant in Hanover street. Judge Burke sentenced them to six months each in the House of Correction.

Miss Mary Tobin of No. 21 Middlesex street, South End, said by the police to be Cohen's sweetheart, fainted in court when the young man received his sentence.

JAIL WIFE-BEATER FOR THREE MONTHS

Mrs. Ellen Ryan, who has been living at No. 1,300 Washington street for several months, told the East Dedham street police that she met her husband, James Ryan of No. 94 Vernon street, Roxbury, on the street and that he wanted her to be a "white slave" for him. When she refused she says he beat her with his fists. She went to the court house to-day with a policeman to get a warrant for her husband's arrest and was surprised to see him standing in the corridor. He was arrested and given three months in the House of Correction.

WOMAN SAVES HOUSE WHILE OTHERS FLEE

Much excitement was caused early today by a fire that started mysteriously in the apartment of I. A. Blake, of No. 95 St. Botolph street, and was extinguished by Mrs. Blake.

The Blake family were at breakfast when they smelled smoke. No attention was paid to it for a time, when the odor became more pungent. Upon opening a door that led to another room a great puff of smoke rolled in and there was a gleam of fire.

"The house is on fire!" cried Mrs. Blake.

Others in the building by this time had become alarmed at the smoke that had sifted out into the halls and curled up the stairways. The whole house was soon in an uproar. One of the members of the family dashed into the street and rang an alarm.

The excitement communicated to other houses and the street was filled with people. In the meantime, Mrs. Blake had dashed into the kitchen and with a bucket of water she made her way through the dense smoke into the burning room.

She found that the blaze had started in a lace curtain and was eating into the woodwork. Mrs. Blake threw the water on the blaze and ran back for more. By the time the firemen had got into the house Mrs. Blake had the fire out. She was congratulated by the firemen for her coolness.

SAYS HIS WIFE LOVED ROOMER; GETS A DECREE

"Never take roomers!"

This is the advice of George Gould of No. 7 Margaret street, Dorchester, who claimed, in the Suffolk County Divorce Court to-day, that his home had been broken up because of his wife's infatuation for a man who lived at his home. Judge King granted a decree.

"We were married in Waltham June 7, 1893," testified Mr. Gould. "We lived in Quincy Adams, Wollaston, Norfolk Downs and Allston. My wife, Maud, left me June 12, 1902. She said at that time that she disliked housework and hated our six-year-old child, Gladys, and that she liked somebody else better than me, and that she was not going to live with me any longer."

"She then left home. She returned two months later and said she was practically destitute. I tried to persuade her to come home to me and my child and be a dutiful wife and mother. She said she would never step in my house again, that she would rather die in the gutter than do so. I gave her $25 and she went away. I have not seen her since."

Walter S. Faulkner of Roxbury, a former neighbor of the Goulds, testified as to alleged acts of familiarity between Mrs. Gould and the roomer.

"I saw him hugging and kissing Mrs. Gould in the pantry after Mr. Gould went to work," said Faulkner.

Mrs. Ida Nice of Providence testified that a few months before the separation, Mrs. Gould told her she intended to elope with a roomer.

HALF $1 BILL CAUSES ARREST

Trying to get the United States subtreasury officials to redeem a half of a $1 bill which had been torn in two led to the arraignment of John F. Shea of No. 5 Mead street, Charlestown, in the Somerville Police Court to-day and his being held in $1,500 for the grand jury, charged with robbery and assault. He pleaded not guilty and waived examination.

John B. Reilly of No. 11 Mystic avenue, Somerville, went to the sub-treasury yesterday with half of a $1 bill and asked for its redemption. He said: "I was near my home on Monday night when I was knocked down and robbed. In the struggle I had with my assailant, I held on to the bill and it got torn. He made off with the other half."

After Reilly went away Shea came in with the other half of the bill. He also wanted it redeemed. He stated that he had bought it of a boy for ten cents. Then Shea was arrested.

SCION WEDS FACTORY GIRL

John B. Craig, scion of one of Brookline's wealthiest families, in spite of parental objections that have lasted for over a year, has married Emma Rheaume, an attractive loom girl of Stone's silk factory of Jamaica Plain, according to the news which leaked out to-day.

Their engagement announced about a year ago, immediately created opposition, and the wedding planned for May was postponed. On August 7 they secured a license at the old courthouse. They were forced to wait for a favorable opportunity for four months. But on Christmas Eve, they slipped away together to Cambridge and were married by the Rev. Alfred A. Wright so quietly that the news has just become known.

They took the midnight to New York, remaining there for New Year's, and returned to Boston to live at No. 58 Gorham street, West Somerville.

STRIKE VOTED IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—By a practically unanimous vote the motormen and conductors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, at a mass meeting early today, expressed their intention to go out on strike a second time within eight months, unless certain specific grievances can be adjusted.

These grievances, apparently minor in their importance, have been discussed for weeks past between Charles O. Kruger, president of the company, and a committee from the union, without adjustment.

By the action of the men last night the grievances are now placed in the hands of the international board. If this fails, a strike is inevitable.

ASSAULTED HUSBAND, BUT ASKS DIVORCE

Although she admitted in the Suffolk County Divorce Court before Judge King to-day that she had been convicted of assaulting her husband, Mrs. Charles T. E. Clapp of No. 53 Beal street, Winthrop, insisted that she be freed from him on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. She said her husband had once broken a washboard on her shoulders. Judge King said he would have an attorney investigate the case.

MAIN FLOODS WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Wall Street in the neighborhood of the Sub-Treasury, J. P. Morgan's office and the Manhattan Trust Company's building at No. 1 Nassau street got a drenching from a geyser of Croton water forty feet high with all the force of a twenty-inch main to-day, which for a time turned the financial centre into a raging torrent.

Every elevator and electric light in the eighteen-story Manhattan Trust building is out of commission. Every tenant had to walk up stairs when they reported for work, and if they were not provided with candles they had to depend on the light of a murky day.

Had it not been for the prompt work of men in the employ of the Water Department every cellar in Broad street below Nassau, with the basements of office buildings in Wall street below Nassau street would have been submerged.

All the trouble was caused by some forgetful fireman failing to properly screw on the top of a water plug under a trap cover of the Nassau street side of the Sub-Treasury. It was forced off by the high pressure.

MAKES KIDNEYS ACT FINE ENDING LAME BACK AND BLADDER MISERY.

A real surprise awaits every sufferer from kidney or bladder trouble who takes several doses of Pape's Diuretic. Misery in the back, sides or loins, sick headache, nervousness, rheumatism, pains, heart palpitations, dizziness, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, lack of energy and all symptoms of out-of-order kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night), smarting, offensive and discolored water and other bladder misery ends.

The moment you suspect kidney or urinary disorder, or feel any rheumatism, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

It is needless to feel miserable and worried because this unusual preparation goes at once to the out-of-order kidneys and urinary system, distributing its cleansing, healing and strengthening influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

$1,000,000 Jewelry Loot Recovered.

GENEVA.—American visitors to Switzerland and the Austrian Tyrol who have been robbed recently of valuables in trains or hotels will be pleased to learn that if they apply to the police at Berne or Botzen, either directly or through their diplomatic represenatives, they will probably recover the lost articles. An apparent miracle has been worked by the Swiss and Tyrolese police, who recently arrested a large gang of international thieves of both sexes at Botzen, where they had gathered to divide their spoil for the last year. Jewelry to the value of $1,000,000, diamond tiaras, rings, bracelets, pearl necklaces, gold watches, chains, etc., are now at the disposal of the rightful owners, among whom are many American victims. Only twenty-five centimes in stamps may bring home valuable stolen jewels. The chief robberies were committed in Switzerland during the last two Summer seasons.

"White Slave" Men Raided.

RIGA, Russia—The offices of an international "white slave" agency here have been raided by the police on information from Copenhagen, where fifteen young Russian girls, who answered advertisements for young women to work as dairymaids, had been sent. Only one of the "white slave" traders was arrested, the others having taken warning, but documents were seized showing an average profit of $30 on each woman successfully placed in Europe or America.

Americans Dine in Berlin.

BERLIN—The seventh annual dinner of the American Association of Commerce was held at the Hotel Adlon. A hundred guests were present, including Ambassador Hill, General Stewart L. Woodford and Professors Wheeler and Moore. The speeches threw no light on the tariff situation, but there was a general sentiment that the difficulties between Germany and the United States might be satisfactorily solved before February 7.

London Sees New Comet.

LONDON—The discovery of a new great daylight comet, announced first as seen by Drake at Johannesburg on Monday morning, was visible at and after sunrise. At the time of the discovery it was 2 degrees west, 1 degrees south of the sun and moved 1 degrees east and 2½ degrees northward daily. Only four or five comets in the century have been sufficiently bright to be seen in the day time.

Sailors Shot Without Trial.

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti—The public has been aroused by the summary execution of two sailors accused of having stolen merchandise from the wharves. General Ferdinand, captain of the port, arrested the sailors, who were immediately shot. It is said that the prisoners were given opportunity neither to explain or confess, and, in fact, were not questioned.

HARDING DAVIS' WIFE MAY NAME ACTRESS IN HER SEPARATION SUIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Following the publication to-day of the fact that Mrs. Richard Harding Davis, wife of the writer, retained counsel to get a separation from her husband, the report was circulated that the name of an actress well known on the American stage would be mentioned in Mrs. Davis's contemplated action. Mr. Davis has also retained a lawyer. The action of Mrs. Davis has caused no surprise among the couple's friends. For three years they have been living apart.

George Y. Bauchle, the writer's lawyer, to-day said that he knew of no suit brought by Mrs. Davis. Her attorneys are Jerome & Rand, the former of whom is the ex-district attorney.

This final break between the noted writer and his wife marks the end of a romance that began when both were children. Mrs. Davis' beauty and accomplishments brought her social renown and she had many suitors, but Davis, who proposed by cable, won her hand. He sent the engagement ring from England by a special messenger.

Mrs. Davis' activities have not been confined to drawing rooms. When her husband went to South Africa as correspondent during the Boer war, she accompanied him and once went to the line of battle with him.

Mr. Davis, who was born in 1864, is one of the foremost writers of America, his short stories selling for $1,000 or more apiece. Romantic Central and South America he has made one of his special fields.

Richard Harding Davis and Miss Cecil Clark were married at the little chapel of St. Gabriel, Marion, Mass., on May 4, 1899, and only fifty of the couple's most intimate friends were present at the ceremony.

The bride was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clark of No. 2000 Prairie avenue, Chicago, and had seen much of the world for a girl of twenty-one. She was a graduate of Farmington, and, like her husband, had achieved distinction as a writer. Her pen and ink sketches, too, were so clever that they carried her out of the amateur class, and many of them appeared in the Chicago papers. Mrs. Davis was regarded as athletic, even after her marriage, and continued to row and ride, doing everything well that she undertook.

ARMED MEN HUNT FLEEING YEGGMAN

LINCOLN, N. H., Jan. 19.—Armed men are searching the woods between West Thornton and Plymouth for a yeggman who escaped last night from Policeman Mitchell of this place. The search is at the same place where 300 armed men sought the three highwaymen who raided twenty towns and cities of New Hampshire two months ago.

HALF A GRAIN KILLS.

One-half grain of "Rough on Rats" will kill a Rat. One 25c. box of Rough on Rats holds at least 1,600 grains; this means that a 25c. box contains enough poison, if properly mixed with something they will eat, to kill 3,000 or more Rats and Mice or thousands of Roaches, Ants, Beetles and Bed Bugs. It is not poisonous to handle, only so when eaten. Being powerful, it should not be mixed too strong. Let the food used predominate largely, about 1 to 20. Read all directions carefully. The one important thing is to see it is well mixed and thoroughly incorporated with the food used, and change the food used from time to time.

DO YOUR OWN MIXING.

Beware of substitutes, the catch penny ready-for-use things. Rough on Rats is no experiment. It has a reputation, is recognized all around the world as "the old reliable," the "unbeatable exterminator," is being used by Cities, States and Governments to stamp out the Bubonic Plague. When buying an exterminator you want the killing merit. Every experienced, disinterested dealer will tell you Rough on Rats has no equal. Being all poison, one 15c. box, our smallest size, mixed with something they will eat, contains enough poison to make or spread 50 to 100 or more little cakes or bits that will, when divided, kill 500 to 1,000 or more Rats and Mice. Not poisonous to handle, only so when eaten. Try it for Roaches and Beetles, mixed 1 to 30 of mashed potatoes. Look out for imitations. Refuse substitutes that may be offered you. 15c., 25c. & 75c., at Druggists. Economy in the larger sizes. Don't die in the house.

MRS. SLATER, WEALTHY BOSTON WOMAN, TRIES TO END MILL STRIKE

Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater, one of the richest women in New England, prominent in Boston society, holding box 1 at the Boston Opera House and making her home with her charming young daughter at Hotel Puritan, to-day began an investigation of conditions at the Slater cotton and woolen mills at Webster, with a view to putting to an end the strike that resulted in 1,000 men and women quitting work.

The strike is in the North Village mill, one of three of the big mills owned by the rich widow. The skilled workmen in the place, numbering about 300, were the factors in loading the strike that affected the whole mill and caused it to shut down work entirely.

The spinners and loom fixers demand their old schedule of fifty-eight hours instead of fifty-six to which they have been cut. The spinners demand an increase of ten per cent. in their wages.

When Mrs. Slater, who has the reputation of being one of the most generous employers in the country, was asked about the trouble to-day, she said:

Surprised at Strike.

"Why, I had not heard of the trouble I shall look into it at once. Of course I cannot express myself upon the matter not knowing the situation.

"I shall get in touch with the situation at once and do what I can to bring about an amicable settlement."

William J. Stewart, superintendent of the mill in which the trouble took place, said this over the telephone:

"We have a strike, yes. The help struck because they want fifty-eight hours' pay for fifty-six hours' work."

"Is there any settlement in sight?" he was asked.

"I don't know—I suppose it will be settled some time, but just when I can't say."

"You can't afford to pay the demands of the strikers?"

"We are not going to pay them," was the terse and emphatic reply of the superintendent.

The force went out at noon yesterday, but it was supposed that it was only a temporary matter. When the mills closed today then Webster waked up to the fact that it had another serious labor dispute on its hands.

Short Hours Add to Burden.

The hands, who have been compelled to accept 56 hours' work instead of 58, as they formerly received, say that prices of the necessaries of life are so exorbitant that they were barely able to make both ends meet at their former pay, and that the cut was the last straw that made their burden greater than they could bear. The spinners give the same reason for their demands.

There was no violence of any kind today. There was no attempt to start the mill, and it could not be learned whether strike-breakers would be brought in or not. Those who have felt the generous hand of Mrs. Slater in Webster said to-day that she would not favor the bringing in of strike-breakers, and they were hoping that she might be able to adjust matters satisfactorily to all.

William J. Stewart, superintendent of the mills, conferred with some of the strikers to-day, but no settlement was reached.

The Slater corporation, which was established by Horatio N. Slater, is the biggest industry in Webster. It employs 1,800 hands and pays about half of the town's total taxation. The payroll amounts to thousands of dollars weekly.

Trustees Direct Mills.

Horatio N. Slater died several years ago and since then the mills have been under the direction of trustees appointed by the Probate Court. Mrs. Slater has reference to the trustees in all matters pertaining to the direct management of the mill, but has often visited the mills.

Each Christmas for several years she has provided presents for the children of every mill employe. Last Christmas 1,500 children were made happy by gifts from her. It is said now that a word from her will end the strike.

It was recently announced in Webster that the management of the Slater estate is to undergo a reorganization which includes the resignation of at least two of the three trustees who have had charge of the mill property and the big Slater building in Worcester.

Congressman Charles G. Washburn of Worcester and Captain Amos Barbour of Webster, who have been trustees since, soon after the death of Mr. Slater announced they were to resign, Mr. Washburn because he had no time to give to the Slater interests and Captain Barbour because he wanted to retire from active business.

Rumor of Mill Change.

Rumors of coming changes in the mill management has caused some uneasiness among the employes. The new 56-hour law coming soon after the cutting down of wages brought about the strike. The three hundred workers walked out of the mills at a pre-arranged signal. Their action stopped several hundred looms.

It was said this morning that the strikers are prepared to fight for their demands and if necessary to call out the other employes in the mills.

It is understood that if an appeal to Mrs. Slater fails to end the strike the rest of the employes are ready to go out. This will mean the biggest strike in Webster for twenty years and the first serious labor trouble among Slater corporation employes.

SENATOR SPALDING SWORN IN AT HOME

For the first time a member-elect of the Legislature qualified to-day at home instead of at the State House. Senator Geraldine Spalding, floor leader of this year's and last year's Senate, is the member. Acting Governor Frothingham and the Council went to No. 75 Sparks streets, Cambridge, and administered the oath of office. Mrs. Spalding is suffering from trouble. It is feared that he may not be able to get to the State House this winter. Before going to Cambridge they administered the oath to Senator James M. Doyle, who will leave at once for Aiken, South Carolina, for his illness.

CLAIM MIND OF THIEF DERANGED

Judge Bruce has been asked by a relative of Daniel C. Prescott, now awaiting trial at the Superior Court at Cambridge on the charge of breaking and entering and larceny from a cottage owned by the Tufts College Corporation, to grant a writ of habeas corpus for Prescott's return to New Hampshire.

This relative claims that the defendant was formerly a selectman and well-to-do citizen of Kensington, N. H., and has been missing from his home for some time. It is said that Prescott is out of his head.

GIRL WHOM STRANGE MAN ATTEMPTED TO STEAL IN ROXBURY

MISS MARIAN GOODWIN

GIRL FOILS ATTEMPT TO STEAL CHILD

The police of the entire city are to-day searching for the man who attacked and tried to kidnap Marion Goodwin, the ten-yearold daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Goodwin of No. 14 Nonquit street, Roxbury, almost in front of her home.

The little girl has not recovered from the severe nervous shock brought on by the sudden attack of the man and is still in a serious condition at her home. During the struggle with her assailant she received a blow in the face from his fist which slightly discolored her right eye.

Marion was on the way to a store on Dudley street. As she reached the corner of Dudley and Nonquit streets she was accosted by a young man who asked her if she knew any little girls who wanted to go on the stage. The child replied that she did not, whereupon the man asked her if she would show him where Virginia street was.

The girl walked along Dudley street to Virginia street. They had gone out a short distance along Virginia street when the man picked the little girl up in his arms and started down the street. When the girl screamed he struck her in the face and then stuffed a handkerchief in her mouth.

All the while struggling to release herself, the girl succeeded in pulling the handkerchief from her mouth. She screamed, with the result that a domestic employed by a family in a house nearby came out to the street.

When the servant girl appeared the man threw the child into a snow bank and ran down Virginia street to Dudley street.

DANES REACH FINAL VERDICT IN COOK CASE

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 19.—The final verdict on Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the explorer, was passed today by the University of Copenhagen Examining Committee. Having gone through the original notes in their entirety, the committee confirmed its previous opinion, that Cook had not proved that he reached the North Pole.

It is said the authorities of the university are only awaiting Rector Torp's return from Egypt to award the honorary degree conferred on Dr. Cook.

The data on which the original report was based differs greatly in no respect from the original note book, according to a report submitted to the consistory today.

Some of the members of the consistory still maintain their belief in Cook's honesty, though branding his false as a scientific and explorer. The entire story is said to be through with Cook for all time.

LE BLANC CASE IS POSTPONED INDEFINITELY

It had been arranged to have Hattie Le Blanc brought before the court to plead to the indictment of murder in the first degree found against her after the killing of Clarence F. Glover in Waltham, but at the last moment the arraignment was indefinitely postponed.

When District Attorney Higgins was asked to-day why the arraignment did not take place in the East Cambridge Court, as expected, he said:

"I am too busy and am not yet ready to take up the case."

It is believed now that arraignment will not take place until after the hearing in the probate of the will, which is set for January 31. It is the general belief that when the will contest comes up, many of the mysterious features of the tragedy will be cleared and facts may be obtained that would present Hattie in a different light from that in which she appears to-day.

The girl's counsel are positive that she will never be found guilty of murder, but they will not go into details as to their reasons.

MISS DRAYTON OFF TO LONDON TO WED

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Miss Caroline Astor Drayton, daughter of J. Coleman Drayton, sailed for England on the Lusitania to-day to become the bride of William Phillips, secretary of first secretary of the American Embassy to the Court of St. James. It was originally planned that the wedding would be solemnized in New York January 15, but the decision of Ambassador Reid to attend the funeral of D. O. Mills made the presence of Mr. Phillips necessary in London.

MOTHER MAY DIE; JUDGE HOLDS SON

Charged with striking his aged mother with a lighted lamp during a family quarrel, Anthony Flaherty of 61 street, South Boston, was held in $1,000 bail by Judge Fallon to-day, when word was received from the Carney Hospital that she was not expected to live the day out. Mrs. Flaherty was burned frightfully about the head and shoulders.

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 19.—"Baby" Bliss, the largest man in the United States, a phenomenal piece of humanity, who has toured two continents on numerous occasions astride a bicycle, may spend his remaining days in an insane asylum. The big fellow was brought to Bartonville Asylum for the incurable insane from his home in Bloomington to-day. He weighs 550 pounds.

COST TAYLOR OVER $2 A VOTE TO RUN

The first mayoralty candidate to file campaign expenses was Nathaniel H. Taylor, who to-day made his statement to the city clerk. He paid out $1,045. Of this $1,500 was for personal expenses, $100 for printing and $45 for halls. He received no contributions. As he received 625 votes they cost over $2 each.

City Hall Notes

The first candidate for the City Council for 1911 has announced himself. He is Alderman Tom Gilbilin and he states that his campaign will be on for the next twelve months.

Mayor-Elect Fitzgerald will take care of Former Assistant Secretary Boudrot, how assistant penal institutions commissioner and Barry Fegarty of Mayor Hibbard's staff, Hoodlum will not be permitted to remain in his present position, which pays $3,500, but will be placed in another, not so lucrative, if he cares to accept it.

Nate McLeod, who was Mayor-Elect Fitzgerald's bodyguard during the campaign, will be named as messenger by the Mayor-elect, according to Ex-Alderman Fred Duggan and others who are booming his candidacy. McLeod was formerly a councilman from Ward 12.

Rumor has it that Dave Noonan, one of the Mayor-elect's hotel rooters during the last fight, will be appointed stenographer in the Mayor's office. Chief Clerk Butler and License Clerk Casey will both remain under the new Mayor.

Assistant City Messenger Charles J. Murphy, one of the original Jim Donovan men and a Storrow supporter during the recent campaign, is one employe who will be understood, is listed for "the hook" after February 7. He has been connected with the city messenger's department for many years.

After the recount is finished Mayor-elect Fitzgerald will announce who will be his secretary for the next four years. Already over a dozen men have been mentioned for the place, but from sources close to the Mayor-elect it is announced that the appointment will cause a surprise when it is made.

GOULD-DREXEL MATCH TO UNITE FORTUNES OF NEARLY $200,000,000

MISS MARJORIE GOULD

Sketch from life by Annette Bradshaw, in costume Miss Gould wore at cotillion at which engagement was announced.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Mrs. George J. Gould to-day announced that her daughter Marjorie will leave soon for a European trip, and her marriage to Anthony J. Drexel Jr., of Philadelphia, will not take place till the Fall.

The match will unite two of the greatest fortunes in America. The Gould estate is estimated at $140,000,000, twice the amount it was on the death of Jay Gould. The estimate of the estate left by the late Anthony J. Drexel is $48,000,000, but the exact figures have never been made public.

The combined income of both fortunes would amount to between $4,000 and $5,000 a day.

"It is true that no definite date has been set for the wedding," said Mrs. Gould to-day at her Fifth avenue home. "It has only been seriously discussed by Mr. Gould and myself for the last week.

"Virtually no arrangements have been made and they will be left, for the most part, to the young people.

"Marjorie will spend the Summer in Europe with members of the family. We will probably return some time in September or October and the marriage will follow speedily."

Beaux in Many Lands.

With many beaux in many lands vesting of them with great wealth, Miss Gould has created the chance to become the bride of a titled foreigner and will marry an American.

This announcement was made at a superb entertainment given by Mrs. Gould in the reconstructed mansion and the halls and rooms of the great house were a veritable bower of orchids and roses. The invited guests numbered 250.

Miss Gould had scores of admirers wherever she went and her engagement to Anson Phelps Stokes has been expected from nearly all the cities in Europe.

Prince Ardent Suitor.

Captain Albert E. S. Paget, son of General Sir Arthur Paget and Lady Paget, paid ardent court to the winsome American when she was abroad last year. Captain Paget had visited at Georgian court and when Miss Gould visited London last year word came of a probable engagement. No announcement followed because there was never grounds for one.

Another report had it that Prince Alex under Georgievich Romanowski of Leuchtenberg, a cousin of the czar of Russia, would be the lucky suitor. He was personalized to be wooing, and no matrimonial prize could have been greater in the eyes of a royalty snubbed American girl. But Miss Marjorie's heart was untouched by his pleadings.

While his wooing was in progress favorable rival entered the lists. He was the Duke of Alba, one of the richest nobles in Europe, with a long list of Spanish, French and English titles.

Wooer With Many Titles.

As the Duke of Braisick, he is entitled to sit in the English House of Lords; in France he is hereditary constable of Navarre. He was as successful as the others.

Undismayed by Miss Gould's previous dismissals of royalty, Prince Francis Joseph, a brother of the Prince Miguel who married Miss Anita Stewart last Fall, tried his luck. He is named for Emperor Francis Joseph, who favored the suit.

The prince's wooing was brief.

He followed Lucy an custom and special negotiations through the Baron de Bertile, French noble. Miss Marjorie's heart was not regarding.

In short of the engagement it is taken for granted that Miss Gould imposed on some of her many lovers the task of the most obedient young men in Europe, although it is said that the task was allotted to Mr. Drexel, who is known as a big fellow in sport.

Childhood Sweethearts.

He and Miss Gould have known each other since childhood. Their mothers are great friends. Mr. Drexel's sister, Miss Marguerite, is a chum of Miss Gould. They were presented at the same time at court last May, and while Miss Gould's suitors were surrounding her Miss Drexel was on hand at the request of Miss Gould.

Miss Gould was the most attended young girl at the court ball January 22 that May Goelet declined to be presented through the Duke's desire of favors.

URGES BANKS AS FACTOR IN PENSION PLAN

Savings banks, through their insurance departments, furnish an admirable medium for administering old age pensions, according to Arthur R. Chapin, State Bank Commissioner, in his annual report, sent to the Legislature today.

"The question of how our elderly wage-earners can best be taken care of is receiving more and more attention in this country," says the report. "Many of the largest corporations are trying to solve this problem by establishing a pension fund within their own walls, the contributions to the fund being paid partly by the employes and partly by the employer. This system will undoubtedly require additional safeguards as time goes on.

"At least one large department store in the city of Boston is considering the advisability of establishing a pension fund among its employes, the contribution to such fund being divided equally between the employer and employe, and the fund to be administered by the savings banks that have established insurance departments.

"The apprehension on the part of some savings bank officials, that the establishment of an insurance department might in any way weaken its savings department either by frightening away depositors or by creating a cry on the bank by timid depositors, has not been realized.

The report shows that the total assets in Massachusetts banks amounts to $1,749,826,107.79. During the past year the total increase in deposits in saving banks has been $35,547,745, a new high record.

The number of deposits during the past year was 2,277,160, as against 2,269,413 the year before. The average per deposit was $768.83, as against $762.14 the year before.

The total deposits now amount to $743,101,487.85, representing an average of $364.77 to each depositor, an increase average of $4.06.

FIRE SWEEPS TURK PALACE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 19.—Fire broke out to-day in the famous Chiragan palace, now the sitting place of the Turkish Parliament. Rare art treasures are reported to be burned.

Within a short time after the fire was discovered thousands of spectators crowded the streets and the entire city was in disorder. The police were reinforced by troops, but even then had great difficulty in maintaining a semblance of order and driving back the crowds. The fighting firemen should not be hampered.

The apparatus was inadequate and the flames gained rapidly. The building dates back to the fifteenth century.

ARREST "WHITE SLAVE" SUSPECT

Suspected of being a "white slaver," Michel Hillon was arrested by Officers Cosgrove and Grace at the Middlesex street station in a house on Middlesex street on the charge of being a common disorderly, and was arraigned today, after a continuance, in the municipal court. He was put in the custody of Assistant Immigration Commissioner Leonard and taken to the Detention Station on Long Wharf by the Government officials a chance to investigate her statement that she has a home in Halifax, and relatives there. She says she is 19 years old.

VOTE TO KEEP MILK PRICE UP ALL YEAR ROUND

The Boston Co-operative Milk Producers Company, at its annual meeting, voted to continue the Winter price of milk, nine cents a quart, during the Summer, instead of making the customary reduction to eight cents a quart, as was the opinion of the meeting that this was necessary on account of the increasing cost of milk production.

Secretary W. A. Hunter of Worcester in his annual report declared new milch cows were decreasing in number at an alarming rate throughout New England. He gave a mass of expert figures and statistics showing that, practically during the one year of 1907, milk-producing cows in the several states decreased as follows: Maine, 1,000; New Hampshire, 4,000; Vermont, 3,000; Massachusetts, 2,000, and Connecticut, 1,000.

Milk distributers in and near Boston expressed surprise at the action of the producers.

George Whiting said: "I never before knew the producers to decide so early in the season, and do not take much stock in their decision. When Summer comes the conditions which present themselves at that time will be met, and until that time no one can know what will be done.

"Farmers don't seem to understand that times have changed—that's all. They've gone ahead and made this decision without counting in the public at all, but the real decision that counts will come next Spring."

C. H. Hood said: "This whole situation is governed by the law of demand and supply—a fact which some people seem to overlook entirely. When June comes along and the grass comes up and the cows get out to the pasture there will be milk in abundance. We'll do all we can to dispose of it—take our customers to the milk pail or the milk pail to our customers. But it's the old story of loading a horse to water. And if all the milk is not drunk up and the price goes down because of a surfeited market, why, no one is to blame—except, perhaps, the cows."

VARIETY OF BOATS AT MOTOR EXHIBIT

When the doors of the Mechanics Building are opened for the National Motor Boat Show Saturday evening there will be on view the largest and most complete collection of motor boats, motors, and all the thousand accessories and equipment that go to make up a complete exhibition of motor craft ever gathered together in one building. This much is already assured by the entries received, but fact the application for space is nearly exhausted. Area to be disposed of to exhibitors. There is probably more boating activity owned in New England than in any section of the country.

ROXBURY LODGER KILLED BY SMOKE

Emil Wilfert, twenty-eight years old, a lodger in the house of Margaret Kelly, No. 76 Bickford street, Roxbury, was suffocated by smoke and burned by a fire in his room early to-day. Wickham evidently was dead before the flames touched his body.

Reserve Officer Dakin of Division 10 saw the smoke and flames coming from the windows of the room occupied by Wilfert, and after sounding an alarm rushed to the house, forced in the door, ran up the stairs through the smoke and broke in the door of Wilfert's room and carried him to the street.

YOUNG STAR WHO STARTED STAGE CAREER AT SEVEN

Miss Edith Taliaferro.

In a recent judicial decision it was stated that few stage babies or infant prodigies ever amounted to much in latter life. That this opinion is erroneous is evidenced by the fact that "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," now playing at the Tremont, contains no less than three important members who started out in stage life at a very early age.

Ada Dawes, who appears as the village gossip and who is well remembered here for her character work in the Henderson productions and other important attractions, was a stage babe with Barrett and McCullough. She, like the majority of the stage children, came from a stage family.

Ernest Truex, the charity boy of the company, however, is an exception to the general rule, his father is a highly respected doctor of lower and the wonder part of the actor was unknown in the family until the advent of young Truex.

Truex started on his stage career at the age of three years and at the age of eight he was a "star," appearing throughout the middle west as Othello, Hamlet and other classic characters. He was supported in this starring venture by Helen Fairlamb, now a prominent leading woman in Australia.

Edith Taliaferro started her theatrical career at the age of seven and has just abandoned her starring tour in "Polly of the Circus" to take the title role of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." Seventeen has never entered her life, everything she has won having been due solely to perseverance and talent.

Edith has played many parts. She first appeared in this city in "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush. She will be remembered as Lover Mary in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

CIGARMAKERS WILL BOOM UNION LABEL

After a strenuous campaign in which $14,000 was paid out of its local treasury to advertise the union label of that craft in Greater Boston alone, Cigarmakers' Union No. 97 is preparing to expend a still greater sum for the same purpose in the near future under plans just made by its "union label committee," of which W. F. Kinsley is the newly elected chairman. The union cigarmakers of Boston spend more money for advertising purposes than any other local union in the world.

FISHING VESSELS RACING TO BOSTON

A telegram from Bierley Cove, N. F., states that seventeen schrs. Avalon, Claudia, Blanche, Lena and Maud, Oregon, Arizona and Woodrow sailed with full cargoes of herring. Exciting scenes will be the order of things while the schooners are homeward bound, and considerable money has been wagered at T wharf on the outcome. The passage should be made in about five days.

B. & A. USES COKE TO LESSEN SMOKE

Coke is to be used exclusively on all Boston & Albany passenger and freight trains as they leave Boston. This announcement was made to-day. At present the trains start into the Boston depot on hot and heavy fires, and by this change the smoke nuisance will be minimized. Coke is being used at the Exeter street heating plant, and on the Newton circuit a smoke less kind of coal is used.

SQUAW TELLS ABOUT RUSEAU SLASHING BEE

Mrs. Mary J. Cook, the Iroquois Indian squaw, who created a sensation at the hearing of the Daniel Blake Russell case in the East Cambridge Probate Court yesterday by identifying a Melrose spectator as "Jim Ruseau," whom she knew in New York, again took the stand to-day and recounted the story of the husking bee party at Hogansburg, N. Y., in 1895, when Jim Ruseau's ears were slashed in a fierce cutting affray. In many of her answers to the questions of Attorney Proctor, for William Russell of Melrose, she resorted to the old Indian expression "Ugh." Each one of these curt, Indian answers brought outbursts of laughter from the spectators who thronged the courtroom.

Tells of Husting Bee.

The tawny Indian woman, dressed in black, was examined through Frank Jordan, a big Iroquois Indian, who acted as interpreter and put the questions to the old Indian tongue.

Questioned by Attorney Proctor, the squaw testified:

Q.—Mrs. Cook, what is the age of your oldest child? A.—Twenty-two.

Q.—Do you remember a husking bee at Hogansburg? A. Yes, sir.

Q.—When was that? A.—A year or two before my marriage.

Q.—Where was Jim Ruseau during that husking bee? A.—He was across the street in a saloon run by John Back.

Q.—Now Mrs. Cook, I want you to tell me everything that happened at the husking bee.

A.—I was with Mary Grey, another Indian, at the husking bee. She had a daughter there. She missed her for a time. She and I left the bee, went across the street to the saloon. Mary tried the door, but it was locked. Her daughter and "Jim" were inside. Mary picked up a big stone from the street, threw it at the door and broke it open. "Jim" appeared with another man. Mary drew a knife from her Indian belt and struck at "Jim." He made an outcry and I saw blood running down his neck.

Stuck Jim's Ear Together.

Q. What, did "Jim" do? A.—"Jim" and this man went to my mother's house. I went, too. His ear had been cut and there was lots of blood. My mother got some tobacco, put it on the cut and stuck the ear together with some gum plaster.

William Rowe, a Metropolitan Park policeman at the Nantasket Beach Reservation, has already testified for Daniel Blake Russell, the claimant for his share of the $500,000 estate of William Russell of Melrose, that he was present when "Jim" Ruseau's ear was cut. Mr. Rowe said that the disfigured man was not "Jim" Ruseau. It is thought that the man whom Mary Cook says was with Ruseau at the cutting affray was William Back, the police officer.

Questioned by Attorney Proctor, Mrs. Cook testified:

Q.—Now, Mrs. Cook, if the man that you identified yesterday as "Jim" Ruseau is in court to-day, I would like to have you see him again.

Couldn't Remember Man.

Turning around Mr. Proctor saw in the corner of the courtroom the squaw man whom the Indian squaw had pointed out as "Jim" Ruseau. He came forward and stood in front of the witness.

Q.—Is this the man that you pointed out yesterday as "Jim" Ruseau? A.—I don't know; I cannot remember.

"That is all," said Attorney Proctor. "She is yours, Mr. Simpson," he said as he turned to the counsel for Daniel Blake Russell.

"I don't want her," replied Attorney Simpson, and the Indian squaw left the stand.

$25,000 TO DREDGE BETWEEN TWO FORTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—In order to afford water communication between Forts Heath and Banks and the other forts in Boston Harbor, Senator Lodge is working to have an amendment to the fortifications bill passed appropriating $25,000 for the purpose. The money would be expended in stredging a channel from Winthrop Wharf to the channel off Apple island in the harbor.

The American Excess Of Good Living

The Principal Cause of the Great Prevalence of Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

A Trial Package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Sent Free.

Man inhabits every part of the globe where external influences can be successfully resisted. Food is an important element in effecting this, and nature has provided for it accordingly. The colder the climate the more animal food and oily substances are required; the warmer, a preponderance of vegetables and fruits is necessary in one's diet.

The whale-blubber of the fur-clad Eskimo and the rice of the nude African are as much necessities of locality as matters of choice. The same indications exist in civilization. Thus, the diet in America and England is essentially different from that in Italy, Spain and Egypt.

The effects of universal communication are nowhere more obvious than on the luxurious table. To furnish the refined cuisine, all climates, both sea and land, are laid under contribution, and the stomach is expected to digest, without assistance, everything that is put into it. Combining together such varied products, and the neglect of the relation between climate and foods, are very active causes of dyspepsia.

The heavy, substantial dishes of this climate accord badly with the thermometer at ninety degrees; and an inflexibility in regulating the kind and quantity of food is a cause of a large proportion of the ill health and stomach troubles among the English and Americans.

Thousands of people who have suffered from stomach troubles, and a general ill-health resulting therefrom, because of a badly regulated diet, and the ingesting of an excessive amount of food at the table, have obtained speedy and permanent relief by means of a simple expedient—that of using one or two of STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS after each meal, or whenever any of the well-known symptoms of indigestion are present.

These powerful digestive tablets contain every element that exists in the stomach to digest the food, and in the exact proportion as found therein. They take the place of the natural digestive juices when the latter are deficient in quality or quantity, and do their work for them, removing the indigestion by digesting the food, and resting, strengthening and purifying the digestive tract.

There is no other digestive remedy on the market which has been found equal to Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets; none which is so rapidly and powerfully efficient, or which removes discomfort, banishes stomach-pain, and relieves and cures all of the symptoms of dyspepsia and indigestion in so thorough and pleasant a manner as these marvelous little tablets, a single grain of which is capable of digesting 3,000 grains of any and every kind of food.

All persons who are annoyed with stomach troubles of any kind should use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which will remove such troubles in a very short time. Purchase a box from your druggist, and send us name and address for free sample. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

A MYSTERY SOLVED

Eczema Not a Blood Disease—New Remedy for Every Skin Trouble

For years the medical profession has been seeking a cure for Eczema, the most common and most stubborn of skin diseases. Some said it was a blood disease; some said it was the result of indigestion. It remained for one studious chemist to settle beyond any question that eczema in all its forms is a skin disease and related in no way to a disordered condition of the blood. This same chemist experimented with many antiseptic, healing and soothing agents, but it was not until he formed the compound Cadum that he at last realized he had given to the world something that would bring relief or cure to millions of sufferers. Cadum ranks to-day with the great discoveries of the medical world. Its action is so positive that the itching of eczema is stopped immediately. People who have itched and scratched for years find sleep and rest as soon as Cadum is used, and in ordinary cases a complete restoration of the skin to a healthy condition is reached in two or three weeks. The soothing, healing effects of Cadum are almost instantaneous. Cadum is sold at all druggists. Trial box 10c.; large box 25c. The small box is sufficient for trial purposes, and may be used not only for eczema in all its forms, but also for hives, pimples, blotches, tetter, itch, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, psoriasis, ringworm, chafings, eruptions, sores, scabs, itching piles, scurvy, etc.

FRED TUDOR DECLINES THE PRESIDENCY

By J. C. KERRISON.

The adjourned annual meeting of the Bay State Automobile Association will be held at the club house on Thursday evening, February 3. While it is understood that several of the present officers of the organization will decline a nomination and re-election to their positions, no concentrated effort is being made to elect any particular set of men to office.

President Fred Tudor has emphatically announced that he desires not a re-election, and the same is true of James Fortescue, who for several years has been the working secretary of the association.

The organization is to-day in as good condition as it has enjoyed for several years, and the membership at large will see that its good and efficient work is continued for years to come.

* * *

Believing that the interests of those who buy motor cars should be protected against dealers who are selling cars which infringe the Selden patent, a call has been issued with a view to forming an organization to be known as the "Licensed Automobile Dealers of New York." The meeting will be held at the Hotel Astor to-morrow.

It is understood that the formation of the proposed licensed automobile dealers of New York, is the forerunner of similar associations in all of the big cities of the country. More than fifty licensed dealers have been invited to attend the meeting and they include almost all the leading dealers of that city.

* * *

In a cover of gray so embossed as to give it a suggestion of Turkish drapery is issued an "automobile catalogue de luxe," as the H. H. Franklin Manufacturing Company of Syracuse designates the formal and elaborate announcement of its motor cars for 1910.

This catalogue is pronounced by some who have already seen it as the handsomest one ever put out by automobile makers, and how high a tribute that is is indicated by the fact that the manufacturers of automobiles are commonly recognized as far in the lead in this class of work.

The catalogue is a thirty-five-page book, into the front design of which the Franklin monogram has been woven. In addition the monogram is embossed in gilt in the centre of the cover. The fly leaves at front and back are of the same material as the cover and have a design of similar pattern.

The catalogue is printed throughout in colors. Five artistic full-page color drawings represent the Franklin automobile in various kinds of service. The pages have decorative borders of different design and crayon sketches form a background for the views of the Franklin car models.

Pictures showing the air-cooling system of the engine, the laminated-wood chassis frame, parts of the engine, full-elliptic springs, fly wheel and disc clutch, auxiliary exhaust and transmission are included, all these being features of the Franklin car.

SULTAN LOSES 200 IN BATTLE

TANGIER, Jan. 19.—Two hundred of the Sultan of Morocco's men were killed in a terrific battle with tribesmen, according to news received to-day from Fez. The tribesmen, according to news received to-day attacked government forces defeating them sharply. The attackers then fled, pursued by soldiers.

WANTS BOOK PUBLISHED.

The legislative Committee on Military Affairs gave a hearing to-day on the petition of Alfred S. BIG BACK BAY REAL ESTATE TRANSACTION

With one large transaction in the Back Bay, comprising the disposal of several properties involving an assessed valuation of $73,500, and a number of other good deals closed, the real estate market to-day was very strong.

Marion C. Trewogy has sold to E. Arthur Robinson six parcels in the Back Bay. The first is No. 17 Ivy street, near Audubon road, and consists of a four-story swell-front brick house and 2,460 square feet of land, all taxed for $15,0[illegible], of which $4,500 is on the land. Another is No. 33 Ivy street, also near Audubon road, which comprises a four-story, swell-front brick house and 2,530 square feet of land, all taxed for $12,000, of which $4,500 is on the land. The three adjoining properties at Nos. 41 to 45 Ivy street, near St. Mary's street, comprising three three-story octagon-front brick houses and 7,020 square feet of land, are also included in the transaction. These are all assessed for $36,100, of which $12,[illegible] is on the land. The next property is that at No. 67 Mountfort street, opposite Ivy street, and comprises a three-story swell-front brick house and 2,198 square feet of land. This latter estate is assessed for a total of $10,500, of which $400 is on the land.

Abraham Strubl et al. have sold to Fannie Pollack the two four-story brick houses and 2,132 square feet of land at Nos. 5-5½ Leverett street, near Green street, West End. This property is taxed on a total valuation of $26,400, of which $14,400 is on the land.

As part payment of the same Fannie Pollack has sold to Abraham Strubl et al. the three three-story and basement brick houses and 2,580 square feet of land at Nos. 33-37 Weston street, corner of Newtern street, Roxbury, all taxed for $11,000, of which $2,[illegible] is on the land.

In Dorchester William S. Brooks, Jr., has sold to Effie M. Connor the frame house and 9,180 square feet of land at No. 23 Englewood avenue, corner of Parkview street, facing Dorchester Park. The property is assessed on a total valuation of $4,400, of which $900 is on the land.

In the same suburb a new brick house and 3,217 square feet of land at the corner of Intervale street and Laurence Park have been sold by Hyman Cohen to Tobie K. Rorison. The land is taxed for 25 cents a foot, and the house, being new, is not yet assessed.

Louis Rosenthal has sold to Philip Cantorowitz a new brick house and 3,217 square feet of land on Laurence Park, near Intervale street, Dorchester. The land is assessed for 25 cents a foot, but the house is not yet taxed, being new.

The Chapin Farm Agency has sold for the owner, Charles A. Williams, his old homestead farm situated on the Wendall road, Warwick, comprising about 30 acres of land with a two-story frame house of 11 rooms, arranged for two families, a commodious barn, horse stable, poultry houses with wire yards, workshop and other outbuilding, together with a maple sugar grove and a sugar house containing an evaporator and complete appliances for the manufacture of maple sugar and syrup, a tract of timber land and a fruit orchard. The estate was sold to Joseph Norton of South Framingham, who has already taken possession.

TAFT JOINS THE MAYFLOWER CLAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—President Taft was elected an active member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants last night by virtue of a discovery that he is a descendant of Francis Cook, one of the Pilgrims who landed at Plymouth in 1620. It was a happy surprise to the President. When he was informed recently that A. A. Aspinwall, the historian, has established the missing connections, and that the general board of the Mayflower Society at Boston had approved his findings, he exclaim:

"I am pleased. I shall sign the roll of membership as soon as it is forwarded to me."

Webb has been in jail at Springfield for the past three months, held an another money order matter.

JORDAN'S BIG BIRTHDAY SALE DRAWS CROWD

The fifty-ninth birthday sale of the Jordan Marsh Company, the ninth annual event of this kind since this big department store passed the half-century mark of its existence, began to-day with a larger list of bargains than ever before. One thousand and thirty-eight lots have been selected for this sale, and among them are bargains that are rarely equalled.

Everything from baby's wares to men's clothing and housefurnishings is included in the list of marked-down goods; there are bargains for every person in the family. Where the lots are small the price has not been considered at all. A figure has been put on them which will insure their sale on the first day of the two days' bargain fest.

It is not a sale of damaged goods or odds and ends in the usual sense of the word. Prices have been reduced not because of inability to sell the goods, but because the company wishes to give the public a chance to get bargains that will make it remember with pleasure the birthday anniversary of the store. According to the management thousands of persons in Boston and all over New England have been waiting for this sale, putting off purchases in the hope of getting the bargains that come on the birthday. It is to please this expectant public that some practically new lines of goods have been included in the sweeping reduction of prices.

There is no special place for the bargains. They are to be found in practically every department of the store. Some of the bargain lots, however, are extremely small, and early purchasers will get them. There will, on the other hand, be something worth buying at a low figure for the whole two days of the sale.

IVERS & POND SALE OF PIANOS IS ON

Much local interest is manifested in the annual pre-inventory sale of the Ivers & Pond Piano Company now in progress at the warerooms of the company, No. 114 Boylston street. At no other time in the year are such price reductions possible on such opportunities offered the public for genuine bargains. Ivers & Pond pianos are known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as one of the few makes of superlative merit. More than 46,000 of these highly artistic instruments are now in use. To facilitate stock-taking the company has made sweeping reductions on second-hand, slightly used and shopworn instruments. A catalogue and full bargain list may be had by writing to the company.

ALLDS BRANDS CHARGES AS "LIE"

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 19.—In the presence of one of the largest audiences ever gathered in the Senate chamber, Jotham P. Allds, president pro tempore and Republican leader, surrendered his gavel to Senator Davis of Buffalo immediately after opening the session to-day, and replied to the charges of Senator Ben Conger that during his career as an Assemblyman he, Allds, had accepted bribes to influence legislation. In a voice shaking with emotion, he characterized the charges as false and demanded an investigation.

NEWSDEALERS' 10TH REUNION JOLLY PARTY

Much enthusiasm marked the tenth annual reunion and banquet of the Suburban Newsdealers' Association, which was held last night at the Crawford House. After the dinner the half a hundred guests "took in the show" at the American Music Hall, where they were joined by others who were not able to attend the dinner.

The company included: President George P. Martin of Franklin, Miss Mabel A. Grey of Chelsea, A. W. Rice of Stoneham, Mrs. S. V. Westgate of Melrose, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rooney of Winchester, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Lawrence of Melrose, G. W. Hunt of Concord, Charles H. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Downey, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo L. Ledwinge, O. P. Chase of Andover, J. J. Chase of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Young, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Taylor of Beverly, Miss Elizabeth Johnson and Ray A. Taylor of Beverly, Fred T. Cahill and Franklin Tompkins of Milford, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Peterson of Rockland, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Eber of South Framingham, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Floyd of Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hunnewell of North Cambridge, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Powers, H. L. SAVE FAMILY FROM TORRENT AT PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, Jan. 19.—One life has been lost, many persons rescued from a number of swollen streams in Pittsburg and environs, which are in the grasp of a flood from the Allegheny River.

Manufacturing concerns are crippled, 5,000 workmen are idle and $100,000 damage has resulted. The breaking of the huge ice gorge at Freeport is responsible for the sudden rise in the Allegheny and the Weather Bureau has issued warnings.

Pearson Hodgeson, eight years old, was drowned in the sudden rise of Turtle Creek. Dr. Reed of Crafton and two companions were rescued with difficulty from the Chartiers Creek when the buggy in which they were riding was swept by back water into that stream.

Streets in the nearby towns have been converted into deep lagoons and lakes of muddy water, filled with ice.

Manufacturing establishments began to close at midnight and railroads and street-car systems have been forced to re-route traffic. The twenty-four-foot stage will cause back water to fill the cellars in Pittsburg's downtown district along Duquesne Way, Sixth streets, and other lowland territory.

Caught in a grinding and irresistible avalanche of river ice, a houseboat moored near Coraopolis in Jack River, a branch of the Ohio, was swept on the crest of a jumble of logs, trees and wreckage driven by a torrent of water and crushed against bridge buttresses. Edward Lasson, his wife and baby and two male boarders, were catapulted from their beds and rescued from the debris by men who hauled them up sixty feet with a rope to safety on the bridge.

BASKETBALL TOUR PLAN OF WOMEN

MEREDITH, N. H., Jan. 19.—Mrs. Dena Copp, captain of a married women's basket ball team of Meredith, has issued a challenge to the young women of Cushing Academy at Ashburnham for a game of basket ball, to be played at Ashburnham Saturday. The Meredith women intend to go on a basket ball trip, meeting other teams of Massachusetts and perhaps other States. They have been coached by an Episcopal clergyman, the Rev. O. R. Craig of Laconia.

THOSE SUDDEN STABS IN THE BACK

Are Twinges That Tell You of Hidden, Dangerous Kidney Troubles

When the kidneys are sick, sharp, darting pains strike you in the back, loins or sides—pains that almost take your breath away, and often make you cry out in agony.

It is almost impossible to mistake these kidney pains, for they seem to centre about the small of the back where the kidneys are located.

And still there are many persons who think backache is merely a muscular trouble—something that is expected to pass away with a little rest, aided by a plaster, or by rubbing with liniment.

There is no plaster nor liniment that will reach the inside cause—sick kidneys. What is needed is a kidney medicine—a kidney stimulant, to start the kidneys working as they should—a healing, soothing tonic, to relieve and cure congestion and inflammation in the kidneys.

Sick kidneys can not get well alone. They need quick help. And if it is not given, the useful work of the kidneys stops. The filtering of the blood is suspended. Poisons circulate freely with the blood—attack muscles, brain, nerves and vital organs. The kidneys swell and throb and that is what makes those sudden stabs of pain in the back. You won't be rid of the trouble until the kidneys are cured.

There is no other remedy for sick kidneys quite equal to Doan's Kidney Pills. This simple vegetable formula has been in use for 75 years and has never been excelled because it is a remedy for the kidneys only—does not act on the bowels nor on any other organs. It soothes while it stimulates, relieves all congestion and irritation, cures backache, regulates the urine and restores a perfect filtering of the blood.

BOSTON PROOF

G. A. Craig, 51 Hancock st., Boston, Mass., says: "I suffered from kidney disease for a long time. My body was racked with pain and I was so nervous that I could not sit still for five minutes at a time. It was with great difficulty that I could straighten after stooping, and the agony could not have been greater had someone suddenly thrust a knife into me. There were dropsical symptoms, the most pronounced of which was a swelling of my feet and ankles. I often became dizzy and the kidney secretions passed far too frequently, especially at night. The physicians did not seem to understand my case and nothing I took benefited me. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly praised, I was led to give them a trial. I discarded the use of all other medicines, taking Doan's Kidney Pills strictly according to directions, and to my delight they brought prompt relief. By the time I had used twelve boxes not a symptom of my old complaint remained."

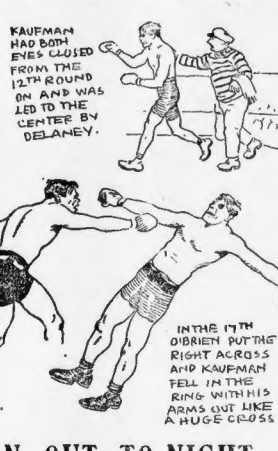
KAUFMAN OUT TO TURN TABLES ON JACK O'BRIEN

Tad Reviews the Former O'Brien-Kaufman Fight

AL KAUFMAN THE MAN PICKED BY BILLY DELANEY AS THE NEXT CHAMPION.



AL KAUFMAN OUT TO-NIGHT AFTER REVENGE FROM O'BRIEN

By TAD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—A little over four years ago, at Sea Breeze, "Philadelphia Jack O'Brien" knocked out Al Kaufman in seventeen rounds after one of the most brutal fights ever seen on the coast. It was the first time that Big Al had ever been knocked out, and it almost broke Billy Delaney's heart.

This pair will meet again in a six-round fight at Philadelphia this evening and all sorts of big things are expected. O'Brien claims that in six rounds he should breeze in, while Al says that the time for his revenge has arrived and that Wednesday will be design day.

Frisco Fight a Terror.

The fight in Frisco was a terror, if there ever was one. Billy Delaney had praised Al as the coming champion, and as he had just finished winning nineteen fights and knockouts, Billy picked O'Brien as his next victim. He was wrong. Jack, the dancing master, did nothing in the first two rounds. In the third he slipped over Kaufman's eyes. He closed one in the ninth and in the twelfth had both so puffed and discolored that Al couldn't see a foot in front of him.

Every round as the bell sounded Delaney led Al out toward the centre, and then the big blacksmith pawed as a man in the dark does feeling for his opponent. O'Brien jabbed, laughed, danced like an Indian, and simply bore his big opponent to the ropes. There was no quit in the blacksmith, however. Whenever he got near enough to feel O'Brien he swung, but he was invariably wild, and O'Brien chuckled with glee.

Delaney wanted to throw up the sponge, but Al refused to quit. He thought he could get Jack with a wild one, and stood there like a soldier and bled like a stuck pig.

In the seventeenth O'Brien had him reeling for the onslaught, and as Al's arms dropped for a second he shot a right over, that stretched the blacksmith on his back. His arms went out and he lay there like a huge cross, dead to the world. He wasn't able to see for a week afterward. Now he declares that with his experience gained in the last four years that there will be a different story to tell Thursday morning.

Get Nelson's Wire—It's a Pippin.

Fred Welsh sends us another long letter, roasting the waddies out of Mr. R. Nelson of Hogwelsh, and wants to know if we intend to proclaim a new champion who refuses to meet a recognized contender.

A cablegram which also came from Cardiff reads as follows:

Cardiff, Wales, Jan. 16, 1910.

Ted, New York:

Will deposit $25,000 purse for Welsh-Nelson, to be split 75 winner, 25 loser, forty-five rounds, to be fought in March. Should Nelson refuse, will sail with Welsh for America, taking Ira Hagne with us. HARRY MARKS.

Evidently Mr. Welsh does not care for the appearance of P. McFarland on the other side. Packy should be there in a day or two.

Well, back to our outmeal. Battling Nelson has read the first Welsh letter, in which he was roasted to a whisper, and in reply writes us the following:

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 16, 1910.

Ted, New York:

Have just perused Welsh epistle and denounce it as an appeal for publicity. Apparently the adverse criticism superinduced by literary outpourings from said ex-Welsh and myself can readily be traced to mental telepathic influence rather than any desire on his part to associate with me in a physical encounter. BATTLING NELSON.

Shades of Epictetus, do you get it? What's the world coming to with these author pugilists? As Demosthenes says, "When in Moscow do as the wives do."

Britt Mingles With a Zulu.

Have received a picture postal from James Britt, who has just left Johannesburg. He writes: "Am boxing with this Zulu just to keep in condition. He tells me that all his men here with Jack are going to back Johnson. Will shake hands with the Shipyard before returning."

On the back of the card is a photo of James sparring with a big Zulu, who has a swell headdress, a shield and a big spear raised at the white kelly worn by the native son.

KETCHEL WILL FIGHT THOMAS ON OTHER SIDE

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Stanley Ketchel is hot on the job after Tom Thomas, the English middleweight champion, now, and has cabled the National Sporting Club that he will be willing to meet the Hercules on the other side the latter part of June. Last night from Michigan, the Cowling wired the following:

Will be in New York next week probably. Am cross eyed to London to fight Thomas for the middleweight title in June. After this will only Europe. Regards. STANLEY KETCHEL.

Ketchel should be a sensation on the other side. He has never fought there, and it is certain that when he does some few persons are going to sit up and chirp a lot. With that wonderful punch and the speed behind it the cowboy will do things over there that the Englishmen never dreamed of.

The way he polished off the best we have in the middle class over here made him the sensation of last year. Hugo Kelly, the Sullivan Twins, Joe Thomas, Papke and O'Brien were out in jigtime, and any man who can wade through that bunch in such short score of time is truly a remarkable fighter.

Tommy, the English champion, is a clever lad with a good wallop, but it's dollars to doughnuts that if Steele's wallop lands first they'll be picking Mr. Thomas up in a dustpan piece by piece. As Joe Sawyer used to say, "If I hammer one of his head it will be good night."

PETE WALKER'S NEW JOB.

Pete Walker, the well-known trainer, to-day made an arrangement with Major Frank H. Briggs, chairman of the advisory committee of athletics at Tech, whereby he will begin work at once in assisting in the training of the Tech athletes. Walker is already helping at the B. A. A. by rubbing Nelson, Frost and others who will compete in the Winter games of the B. A. A. and elsewhere.

ELMER STEELE FIRST TO SIGN NEW CONTRACT

Pitcher Elmer Steele, who will be with the Red Sox again this year after half a season in the minors, sent his signed contract to the Boston club to-day. It was the first of the new contracts the club has had signed. The new document contains a clause prohibiting a player from playing any kind of active sport during the Winter unless he receives permission from the club.

As Steele made no kick against the new clause, President Taylor believes no other player will, because Steele needs every line of a contract and everything has to be just right before he puts his John Hancock to it.

Steele wrote an interesting letter to Mr. Taylor, which he enclosed with his contract. It is dated Poughkeepsie, where he lives. He says he is in the best and is working every day hoeing apples into cars. He weighs 185 pounds and has been doing gymnasium work. President Taylor wrote in reply, telling him to cut out the gym business and that his other work was enough.

Steele also said: "I expect to do something for the Red Sox next year (that's what they all say, but I am going to prove it to you). I am glad you selected Percy for manager. He is a fine fellow and knows the game. He ought to be successful with the team you have furnished him for you have the talk of the country as well as the players.

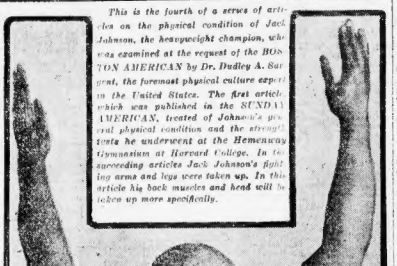
"You certainly have the best man on the team for captain for Lord is the best natured fellow in the American League."

He did that Duffy Lewis, the new California outfielder was playing indoor baseball, President Taylor wrote him asking him to cut it out. Before the letter was received, however, Lewis wrote that the league had broke up and that he did not intend to play any more.

Johnson's Shoulders Amaze Expert

Dr. Sargent Says Champion Is Exceeded Only by Cyr in This Respect.

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the physical condition of Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, who was examined at the request of the BOSTON AMERICAN by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, the foremost physical culture expert in the United States. The first article which was published in the SUNDAY AMERICAN, treated of Johnson's general physical condition and the strength tests the underwent at the Hemenway Gymnasium at Harvard College. In the succeeding articles Jack Johnson's fighting arms and legs were taken up. In this article his back muscles and head will be taken up more specifically.



Perfectly developed back muscles that work automatically and give emphasis to every punch and a front of the broadest and most heavy shoulders that Dr. Dudley A. Sargent has ever seen, are strong factors that give Jack Johnson the advantage command when the champion meets Jeffries in the battle for the world's championship.

Dr. Sargent found that the bronzed giant's shoulders were in excellent condition and next to those of Louis Cyr, the English strong man, are the broadest of the thousands he has examined. The back muscles were found to be a perfect overdevelopment, perfected and developed to the finest point. The strength of the shoulders and back muscles of Jack Johnson showed up to advantage in the tests at Harvard College.

Jack Johnson's shoulders and back muscles have filled out remarkably in the past year. The warrior has paid great attention to building up his back and shoulders with new he has reached almost the acme of symmetrical development. Jack's most recent fight he has sent his entire body and shoulder strength along with his punches. He reserves his forearm and upper arm strength for the crucial moments in his battle battles. Jack insists upon having his shoulder and back muscles most carefully rubbed and oiled by his trainers.

Dr. Sargent was deeply interested when he took Jack Johnson's shoulder breadth in the tests at the Hemenway Gymnasium. He was astounded when he found that Jack measured 20¾ inches from shoulder to shoulder.

"Why, Mr. Johnson; that's a record measure," said Dr. Sargent, as his face beamed in smiles. "This is tremendously great. I think that it is only exceeded by the breadth of Louis Cyr, whom I measured.

"This is a great measurement in your favor," Dr. Sargent continued. The Harvard physical expert asked one of his assistants to verify the measurement and he returned to the examination room in a minute to confirm Dr. Sargent's figures.

"Johnson is a rugged, strong man," Dr. Sargent observed after studying his back muscles and shoulders. "He looks to me as though he would be troublesome to any man in the ring."

Jack's head seemed to set almost on his broad shoulders. His neck is very broad and extremely short in comparison with his body. He has a prize-fighter's neck in all respects.

The girth of Johnson's neck, Dr. Sargent found to be 17 3-10 inches, while the girth of his massive head measured 23 6-10 inches. The girth of the fighter's chest was 42 5-10 inches, while his chest, full, expanded to 44 1-10 inches. Johnson's girth at the waist was 32 2-10 inches, while expanded it gives to 40 2-10 inches, showing the warrior's power and lung capacity. The back and shoulder muscles swelled magnificently as Johnson inhaled. Dr. Sargent found that he had wonderful control of his back muscles and shoulders.

Jack's breadth of head was found to be 6 6-10 inches, his breadth of neck 6 4-10 inches and his breadth of waist 12 inches.

HORSE NOTES WINTER CHAT

The money winnings of Custenaro's get the past season were given a good lift by Jean K., 2:04½, and Peter Volo, 2:05¾. "Rose" won almost $9,000 and "Paddy" about $5,000.

Dr. Strong (2:05¾) is in fine shape and will be trained again next year, and it is hoped he will stay up, as he is a great favorite in the Smoky City.

The only pacing son of Moko in the 2:10 list is called Gimpaka that took a record of 2:10 in the West the past season.

A horse that will attract considerable attention when the bell rings again is Chitwood, Jr., a brother of Hedgewood Boy (2:02¾), and Lady Maud C. (2:02¾).

Baseball News and Notes.

Horace Fozel has done two things since he bought the Phillies. He has substituted cushions for chairs in the baseball park and has given classy for next year's uniform. His athletes will wear white stockings with green stripes—probably in honor of the new manager.

* * *

Connie Mack will not get down to the roster limit until he really has to. He has such a lot of fine-looking young material that he wishes to give every one a try. He hopes to make good in the South. His only problem now is the outfield and catcher positions.

* * *

Roger Bresnahan's most promising recruits are Leonard Hasenmiller, Marcy Settle, Pitcher Geyer of Columbus and Infielder Bell of Springfield. Ellis O'Dell and Evans will probably hold down the pedestal positions.

* * *

Walter Johnson, the mainstay of the Washington pitching staff, twirled a no-hit game at Santa Ana, Cal., last week. He shut out the Salt Lakes without a run or a hit, and only two men of the opposition got to first base. These he passed. Johnson struck out fourteen men and secured a hit for himself and had seven assists.

Comiskey will take to Los Angeles one of the biggest parties of White Sox that ever went into Spring training. More than fifty athletes will go. Week or two the two teams which will tour California that State.

and the coast. The old Roman needs a lot of men, as he will begin to exhibit games almost as soon as he hits California.

* * *

Pitcher Harry Krause, the star southpaw of the Athletics, will help coach St. Mary's college in California. Catcher Eddie Burns will assist him. This pair were the crack battery of the college team that in 1907 won every game of its twenty-six scheduled contests. The collegians are using the indoor diamond at the Los Angeles pavilion of the Coast League. It was Krause's private opinion at that time that attracted the attention of foxy Connie Mack.

Kid Elberfeld has a novel scheme to keep his family peace with his better half. At the beginning of 1908 each night he put in the pocket of his change into a little savings bank. At Christmas time he had accumulated in coppers for a boy with, last year he saved his nickels, with the result that he raised the Christmas donation to $120. This year he says he'll persuade the dimes for Mrs. Elberfeld.

Jimmie Barrett, the old-time star of Cincinnati, Detroit and Boston, has signed with Milwaukee for next season. Until the big event back on his four years ago Barrett was one of the best outfielders in the American League.

Joe Doyle, the slow man of the Yankee pitching staff, has just invaded Oklahoma in his annual crusade against the quail of that State.

HOPPE WINS BOTH GAMES

Willie Hoppe defeated Charles Campbell at the Imperial billiard room by the following score: Hoppe 400, average 22⅝, high run 138; Campbell 126, average 7 2-17, high run 38.

In the evening Mr. Hoppe defeated George Carter by the following score: Hoppe 400, average 18 2-11, high run 129; Carter 259, average 12 1-3, high run 30.

At every performance Hoppe makes some of the most wonderful fancy shots ever seen in Boston, consisting of forces, follows, masse, draw shots, follow and draw combined and wing shots. He makes the balls do the funniest stunts, and when he's in form odd, it is all a case of his wonderful control and manipulation of the leather.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Men---Free

Send Name and Address To-day —You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, failing memory and lame back, brought on by overwork or any cause, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his power and vitality, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge in a plain, sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of lost strength ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere, who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4268 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many people would charge $5.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

RED SOX PITCHERS LEAVE FIRST FOR SPRING PRACTICE

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

HOPPE WINS TWO BILLIARD GAMES FROM LOCAL MEN

Little Jeff Hits Paris. Oh, You Paris Chicken!---By "Bud" Fisher

TAYLOR SENDS HIS PITCHERS OFF FIRST

President Taylor has decided to send most of the pitchers and one catcher of the Boston Americans to Hot Springs a week ahead of the regulars. They will report at Hot Springs, March 7. Manager P. J. Donovan and Trainer Charles Green will report at the same time. The following named players have been ordered to be on hand at the appointed time: Cicotte, Karger, Arellanes, Hall, Steele, Collins, Smith, Wood, Ehmke, Madden, Cape, Anderson, Thompson, Barbeau and Leroy.

The Boston American club has sold the release of Charles R. Tonneman to the Toronto club. Tonneman caught for Nashville last season.

Thoney Will Remain.

So much talk has been created in papers recently outside of Boston to the effect that Billet Jack Thoney was to be turned back to Toronto by the Red Sox, that it might be well to emphasize the fact that President Taylor has still implicit confidence in Thoney's ability to play winning ball, and that the Red Sox magnate intends to give him another chance.

It may have been noticed that Thoney's name appears in the list of men to be taken on the spring trip. This would be enough to indicate that another trial is assured the Billet one. If President Taylor did not come out flatfootedly with the statement that Joe Kinkaskin would once again be seen in harness.

Dovey in New York.

President John Dovey of the Boston Nationals is in New York to consult Charles Ebbetts of the schedule committee. Mr. Dovey is anxious to get the opening game with New York for the Boston club, and, as he has heard that he has not likely to get that plum, he determined to board the iron in his den and make a personal claim to the New York opening.

Boston has not opened with New York since 1905, as I, as four seasons have elapsed with Brooklyn getting this date on several occasions. President Dovey is entitled to a "holler."

WHY DO WOMEN ACT SO in their fight for suffrage? Prof. Rice of Columbia University will explain the psychology of it in the Sunday American.

DATES FOR REGATTA.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Announcement is made that the intercollegiate regatta for the year at Poughkeepsie will be held on June 25, and the contests will commence at half past four in the afternoon.

Jack Twin Sullivan Loses Fight with Frank Klaus

PITTSBURG BOXER LED ALL THE WAY

By I. S. CLARK.

Frank Klaus that bearcat fighter from Pittsburg got one step nearer as a claimant for the middleweight title by beating Veteran Jack Twin Sullivan to a frazzle in their twelve-round battle at the Armory A. A. last night.

It was Klaus all the way. Of all the fine fistfights who ever stepped into the local arena none made a deeper impression by an exhibition of whirlwind speed that was simply unbeatable. Nothing but the crazy ring tactics that the wily Twin is master of saved the old stager from a quick defeat as Klaus tried hard to put the curtains on the old fox and had the punch, but was outwitted in landing it.

The best that could be handed the Twin was a couple of even rounds when Klaus showed up just a bit but the other ten were clearly in favor of the Smoketown fighter.

The battle scarred Twin was a sorry sight when the final bell rang from the battering that Klaus had handed him. One eye was so puffed up that it was closed and was gashed with the blood streaming from the cut covering his features red.

He got himself in bad by resorting to a free use of the elbow when in the clinches, being roundly hissed for overstepping the rules, but Klaus refused to be disconcerted by any bad behavior on the part of the Twin and stuck to his job of giving the famous veteran one of the hardest beatings in his career.

Twin's Science Is Good.

What science that the Twin had gathered in his bald pate after many years up and down the pugilistic road failed to count with such a speed merchant as Klaus who was one mahogany in action, wadding into his elder foe without any care to his own guard but with the one intention of landing his wallops which he put over from every direction and the posture of the clinches was the cunning tricks of the Twin in tying up the Dutchman.

When hanging together Klaus never let up on his object but whaled away with his free hand till the Twin slipped on an effectual hold.

The Twin did not take kindly to being carried along at such a peppery clip but it was impossible to slow up the firebrand that faced him and was determined to make the Twin stretch himself as he never did before.

Klaus Started Fast.

There were no sign of any stage fright about Klaus when he got the word to open up. He was the busiest piece of fighting machinery that was ever seen in the middleweight class around here, and the admirers of the Twin got a scare in the early rounds when the Pittsburg express began to pile in the welts of the wrecking kind. That the Twin would get together before it was too late and come down the home stretch in the old time style was the hope of those who were staunch to his colors, but the change never came. Instead the Twin was slowly losing his stream under the pressure of the body drives that Klaus kept slamming into him and from the third round on when it looked as if the old battler would be forced to succumb to the terrific onslaught that was hurled at him.

Some rattling dubbing by the Twin saved his bacon when Klaus swung his right for a knockout but he took enough banging on the side of the head to have upset many a less experienced ring general, while the body smashing he got would have made a lot seek a soft spot, but this bulldog game necks never deserted him and he stood the gaff to the end.

Dutchman Could Hit.

Klaus proved himself a wonder in the hitting line. He was not satisfied to land one punch but he shot them in bunches and the Twin driving one hand after the other and scored repeatedly with a left shift to the body. When he missed, as the Twin sidestepped some of his rushes and he lunged across the ring he was set like a flash ready to swing.

The blend got badly bumped, as the Twin was picked to win at odds of 10 to 8, his experience and cunning proved to be in the ring being the factors that caused him to be on the long end, but it was a case of the survival of the fittest and Klaus was a far better looking athlete for the kind of milling that was scheduled.

Both weighed in under 160 pounds But the Twin had a good sized pounds hanging over a fight classic with belt which he wore around his loins.

It was up to the youngest member of the Sullivan family to save the fighting name and Dan certainly acquitted himself a true fighter when he was sent against one of the ruggedest in Vernon Austin the Canadian middleweight champion in the semi-final bout of ten rounds.

This was a gruelling affair in which the local youngster was put to the test of a physical stamina contest in which he proved all to the good and won on his grit alone.

After the first round was over mind wagers were freely made that the bout would not go the limit by the way the knockout wallops were flying around the ring.

Dan scored a knockdown in the open big session and it was Austin's turn to get one on in the second round. Austin had a well oiled left jab that dotted Sullivan's face and had him worried and an unexpected bounce in the wind made him show distress feelings but Austin did not follow up his advantage. Both fought themselves out in the third round, Sullivan cunning grunts by the elegant opening he let go by.

The sixth was a bad one for Sullivan as he was rocked by a right on the jaw but he came out in the next period and had Austin going before the bell came.

It was about an even split with a good deal hanging on what would happen to the windup and Young Sullivan came to the scratch, steeled himself and shot over several well timed punches that took the sap out of Austin and his strong finish got him the decision.

Frank Mantelle, a sparring partner of Klaus's, toed the mark with Kid Shea of local reputation and a rattling bid never caught on quicker with the fistic followers. He was ready to swap at all times and a shifty execution with his left pulled him out a winner at the end of the eight rounds.

DOVEY PLAYER MAY LOSE EYE

PITTSBURG, Penn., Jan. 10.—Jimmy Kane, a former Pittsburg National League player, who was recently drafted into the big league again by the Boston Nationals taking him from Omaha, is lying in the Eye and Ear Hospital at Pittsburg, with specialists attempting the apparently hopeless task of saving the sight of his right eye.

Kane, who is a member of the Pittsburg team in the Central Basketball League, and was playing at Uniontown, Penn., was trying to make a goal when one of the opposition team bumped against him and accidentally thrust his thumb into his eye. Kane fell to the floor in agony and Uniontown physicians, who worked with him most of the night, give it as their opinion that there was no hope whatever of saving the sight of the eye.

He may not be able to play ball at all, even if the sight be saved. Kane was one of the first players to quarrel with the Pittsburg ball club owners over playing basketball in Winter.

VAN DYKE DEFEATS SMALL.

Van Dyke defeated Small in the second game of the Class A amateur billiard tourney at the Hub Palace by a score of 200 to 263. Small made runs of 30 and 20. To-night Paige plays Parker.

HUESTON'S FORFEIT UP.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Pool champion Thomas Hueston has posted a forfeit of $250 to bind his match with Jerome Keogh for the world's championship title here a week from next Monday.

Boxing Bouts

NEW YORK—Mike Glover of Boston proved himself a clever man with his fists in his ten-round bout with Marty Rowan of Brooklyn at Brown's gymnasium. The Bostonian proved too clever for the Brooklyn boy, and so had the better of the bout.

It was a fast mill from beginning to end. Both boys tried hard at various times to get home a sleep-producing wallop, but neither succeeded.

READING, Penn.—Tommy Langdon and Tommy Carey, both of Philadelphia, fought a fast ten-round bout before the Reading A. C., with honors decidedly in favor of Langdon. Only Carey's gameness kept him in the going to the final bell.

PHILADELPHIA.—Young Erne outclassed Joe Hirst in the wind-up at the Douglas A. C. Hirst was in great shape, and carried the milling at the opening of the fight, but was unable to hold off his sturdy opponent in the last two rounds.

CHESS EXPERT TO PLAY ALL COMERS

The Boston Chess Club will open its rooms at No. 241 Tremont street this evening to all chess players who may wish to engage in simultaneous play with Herman C. Pantel, one of the best local experts, who will conduct the seance against all comers.

DR. ROLLER MAY FIGHT IN MEMPHIS

Dr. R. F. Roller, the Seattle surgeon-wrestler, will take another try at the pugilistic game, and Tommy Ryan has promised him a chance at the second show to be given by his new Memphis club. Roller's opponent likely will be Billy Heller, a local heavyweight.

RANDALL COACH AT DARTMOUTH

William J. Randall, '06, for the past ten years identified with football interests at Hanover, has been appointed field coach of the Dartmouth eleven for 1910. The announcement was made by E. K. Hall of the Dartmouth athletic council.

Mr. Hall stated that an innovation would be tried next season, for in addition to a coaching staff there would be an advisory committee, the members of which would assist in coaching the eleven at intervals during the season.

The system of having a coaching staff of three men, instead of the one-man system so long in vogue at Dartmouth, was inaugurated last year. This staff consisted of W. H. Illingsworth field coach, with J. T. Kendy and W. J. Randall as assistants.

SMITH WRESTLES PERRELLI TONIGHT

Jack Perrelli meets Carl Smith on the mat at the Columbia Theatre to-night in a catch-as-catch-can style, best two out of three bouts, and the chances are that the wrestling fans will get as warm an exhibition as they have witnessed for many a day.

The abilities of Perrelli are well-known and Smith is also known to be a "foeman worthy of his steel."

Incidentally, in connection with the show of Miner's Americans, there is an exhibition of wrestling and boxing by the Bennett sisters, Laura and Crystal, fans in the champion female wrestler of America and is open to challenge from any woman who thinks she cannot be thrown in fifteen minutes.

STRAIGHT DOPE
FOR SPORT FANS

YOU CAN'T DOPE THE FIGHTERS with any degree of success. Our old friend Jack Twin Sullivan got one step nearer a man who had the hardest time of his life getting a decision from Porky Flynn, after Jack Twin made the Flynn boy look like a novice. On dope Jack Twin should have been an easy victor, but neither he or Frank Klaus ran to form. Klaus was on top of him all the time and the Twin's cleverness couldn't save him from defeat. At that though, I don't imagine he didn't get up a good fight for he did. The trouble was that the Pittsburger fought better. He'll give the best of them a hard run for the money.

AND SPEAKING OF THE SULLIVANS it looks to me to be up to Jack and Mike to persuade Brother Dan that fighting is not his line. He might do pretty well at anything else—he's a strong, husky young fellow—but he should get himself a job and go to work. For a few seconds at the beginning of each round he thinks he's a fighter, but after he gets a punch or two he realizes his mistake. Mike Twin, who was in his brother's corner, worked harder trying to keep Dan fighting than the youngster did in the ring. Take it from me Dan and that much touted Canadian champion are a pair of hams.

JUST A LITTLE MORE ABOUT THAT boxing show last night. Referee Dick Flemming has his batting eye back and I failed to hear a murmer against his decisions. Evidently his bad streak is gone. There could be no improvement on his work for the past four weeks, and I'm pulling strong for him to keep up the good work.

THERE WILL BE LARGE AND FAJoyable doings on tap at Rotghan's Hall, Charlestown, this evening when the members of the Hancock Social and Athletic Club and their friends get together in the first annual ball. The occasion is also a reunion of the Bendigoes, as the well known Charlestown club, which has merged into the Hancock's. According to Braggo, this evening promises to be the largest ever. The only reason I'm not going is that they forgot to send me an invitation, and far be it from me to butt in.

GEORGE BROUGH, CHARLESTOWN, Mass.—It is all well enough for you to call down McGinn for what he said about you, and I'll be glad to help you along, but you will have to chop out a lot of that rough stuff you pulled on him in the letter you sent me. Write another one and forget all about that standing on the bridge with a piece of lead pipe watching for the next victim, and I'll try to print it. Don't be so rabid, George, it's kind of dangerous at times.

THIS MAY HELP SOME OF YOU baseball fans put in a minute while you're waiting for the season to open:

The record for pitchers' wildness is twenty-four bases on balls in a game, made in Pittsburg on June 30, 1883. The game was between the Pirates and Brooklyns. Terry, Killen and Gumbert, who pitched for Pittsburg, gave fifteen bases on balls, while Lovett and Haddock, pitching for Brooklyn, gave nine. In 1887 William George, pitching for New York against Indianapolis, gave thirteen bases on balls, and Larry Corcoran, pitching for Indianapolis, gave ten, making a total of twenty-three. The largest number of bases on balls to the credit of a single pitcher is held by Creed Bates, the young left hander who was a member of the Cleveland Nationals in 1890. He issued fourteen passes and hit three men in a single game.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Sat., Jan. 8.—I am to think something of your dope, but think you are getting a little too fresh with me. Why don't you come into the office some time and I'll try to get some of the starch out of you. You were O. K. but slowed down about ten rounds too soon.

W. A.

New Bedford, Mass.

All right, Bo, but I've got to be pretty brash with some of these Jo boys who try to put out one error on us without having the goods on their persons to back it up. Can't afford to back-pedal for that kind, you know.

Straight Dope, Boston American:

Reading your column a short time ago, I saw where a person named Jack Sullivan of Cambridge had been engaged to train Jack Johnson. If it is not too much to ask, will you kindly publish his record? Yours truly,

HENRY JOHNSON.

No. 101 Summer street, East Boston.

Really, Henry, you will have to keep better posted on the great boxers of the day or will ask gaiters on you and send you back to the minors. Mirandy on Separation as a Divorce Cure

By Dorothy Dix

"DE odder night," said Mirandy, "Mary Jane was a reading in de paper to me about dat couple what went to de court an' asked for a diverse, an' when de Judge Man ax 'em what dey got against each odder, dey say dat ain't got nothin in partickler regep dat dey jest got so dat dey jest natchully despises de looks of each odder an' dey can't stand each odder no mo.

"An' de Judge man says to 'em, 'Chillen, I knows just how hit is, but you don't want no diverse. What's de matter wid you is dat you is got a overdose of each odder's society, an' what you wants is jest to be separated for about a year. Therefore I sends dis lady back to her Maw, an' don't you start to go near her for twelve months. An' I send you back to you' Maw, an' if I hears of her a negotiatin' around in yo' neighborhood or writin' you any 'come on' letters, I'se gwine to give her de full extent of de law. Now both of you go home yo' lonlses, an' at de end of de year you wants a diverse, I'll give hit to you, but instead of dat you'll be invitin' me to yo' second weddin' supper.'

Dat Judge Sure Was Married

"Eh, Lawd, but dat judge has got gumption in his head, an' I bet he's a married man an' knows dat matrimony is a mighty wearin' experience, an' one dat is mighty apt to git on yo' nerves if dere ain't a let up in hit ev'ey now an' den.

"Folks what you has got to live wid day in an' day out, an' dat you has got to look at across de breakfast table, from Christmas to Christmas, shorely does make you so tired dat dere's times when you feel like flingin' de coffee pot at 'em or takin' de cyarvin' knife to 'em jest see of you can't alter de shape of dere noses, or de set of dere mouths so dat dey will look a little different.

"Dat's de reason dat husbands an' wives is always scrappin'. It ain't dat dey has got anything against each other, but dey has to try to put a little zinger into family life, so dat deres a little excitement around. Two people dat knows de same folks, an' goes to de same places, an' sees de same things ain't got nothin' to talk about, an' so mostly its so still an' quiet in the family circle of a married couple dat you could hear a pin drop, ontel one or de odder of dem drops in de subject of infant bodiline, or de suffragettes, or de price of a new hat, an' den things begin to look up an' fust news you knows, de husband an' wife is at each odder, hammer an' tongs, not because dey cared about dem things, but because dey was so bored dat days ready to fight for de fun of de thing.

"Yassum, most of de misery of married life comes from folks gittin' tour much of each other's society, an' of things was fixed so dat you jest made excursions into de holy estate instead of livin' to live dere all de time dere wouldn't be no divorces.

"Lassum, of we could jest be married three days a week instead of seven marriage would be one grand sweet song as de hymn book says.

"Did you ever notice how confectioners couples is what de husband is a character on each a rusty, dandy-fatgged an' he's always a plannin' what he's gwine man as he is.

"De sailorman 'nd his wif e am de happiest people on earth when he gets back home" counsuer, or a sailor, or sumethin' dat takes him away from home most of de time? He totes his wife's picture in de back of his watch, an' a lock of her hair in his pocketbook, an' writes to her ev'ey day, an' don't forgit her birthday, nor Christmas, nor nothin', an' when he kimes home about home hits lak gittin' back to Heaven, an' when he comes home she most cooks herself to death to fix him up what he likes to eat.

"Well, de reason of all dat is dat dey don't see too much of each other. Dey don't git well enough acquainted to git tired of each odder; but jest let dat man settle down to stay at home all de time, an' dey gits ink de balance of us. She don't set up an' laugh herself to death when he tells his funny stories, because she knows exactly what dem words is gwine to be befo' he says 'em; an' he ain't payin' her no compliments on her cookin', because he's done ec so much of hit dat hits give him de dyspepsy, an' before you know hit his dream of bliss sin't spendin' a quiet evenin' at home—hits' sneakin' off to de corner saloon.

Absence Is the Cure for Divorce.

"Yassum, absence is de cure for de divorce evil. I know how dat is myself. Me and Ike can pull along in double harness pretty comfortable an' peaceable for about six months' an' den I begins to notice how Ike duz as we good lookin' as I thought he was, an' dat he has got a heap of peculiar peculiarities dat sort of rises up like gall an' wormwood in my throat, an' I gits a mighty whut a fool I was to throw away a fine woman such as I is married to, an' how pleasonable he is wid, a three-story intellect an' a noble character an' such a runty, bandy-fatgged man as he is.

"An' I also notices dat Ike is gittin' sort of grumpy, an' dat he's done lost his appetite for his vittels, and dat at supper he blows dat deres somethin' de matter wid de pork chops, an' dat hits a strange thing to him dat a woman can cook for thutty years an' never learn how to make a biscuit exhactly right, an' when I starts to tell him suzthin' he grunts an' says dat I done told him dat six times befo'.

"Den I knows dat me an' Ike has stood matrimony as long as we can. We've got to take a rest, an' slip our necks out from under de yoke an' let de galled places git well; so I goes off on a visit somewhere, an' by de time I gits back an' sees Ike stumpin' on de platform awaitin' for me, he certainly does look a grand figger of a man to me, an' dat night at supper Ike says, 'Ole lady, I ain't had a mouth fill fitten to eat since you went away. You autturnly is got de angel touch on the fry-in' pan,' an' we stays awake half de night a talkin.'

"Yassum, you've got to take matermony in broken doses if you wants hit to agree wid you. Too much of hit will sour on anybody's stomach, an' if day'd just fix up some sort of a plan so dat you'd be married half of de time an' on ticket-of-leave de odder half deres wouldn't be no mo' divorsh es."

"Why, you little idiot!" he exclaimed. "What do you mean?"

But the girl clung desperately to him until Cole interfered. He forced his fingers beneath hers, gently but firmly, and drew her around until she faced him.

"Marie," he said, with understanding, "you don't want such a monster to escape. Think, child! Think a moment of how he has deceived you. Not only is it true that he doesn't care for you, but you know he is unworthy of even mine."

"It's a suffin'. She did not let him finish. Drawing suddenly away, she slipped her hands from his and for a moment hid her face in them.

They were very delicate hands. Presently one of them sought her throat, while the other indicated the aperture in the wall. Her head drooped, her eyes were downcast, the pretty face was drawn and white.

"I—I am a good girl, monsieur," she said, chokingly. "Oui."

Flint hastened into the opening, but the young man lingered and looked across his shoulder at Marie. She had not stirred.

On a sudden impulse he came swiftly back to her, and, catching the outstretched hand in both of his, looked down at her with sympathetic discernment. The light in the cellar was dim, but the girl flushed and responded to his interest; her melancholy eyes met his.

"Yes, Marie," he spoke gravely, "I know—I understand. You are a good girl. Au revoir."

Then he hurried after Flint.

"I have a premonition that you will never bind him behind the bars," Cole gayly called to his ashen, But anger and disgust all at once mastered him. "Oh, you sleuth!" he cried bitterly.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Down!

IN the whirl of Friday morning's events Miss Gervaise must not be lost sight of. At an hour so early that she had not yet risen her maid awoke her to impart the intelligence that her presence was urgently desired down stairs.

Miss Edith did not delay. What with Foster Cole's unaccountable silence and her anxiety concerning Dorothy, any summons would find her willing. If not actually ready, to obey it, in the hope of learning something respecting her friend's father.

Edith was a loyal little lady; and as it was not long until she was confronting in the reception hall a raw and awkward country youth, who stood nervously, alternating his hat under the severely disapproving eye of Stevens. That worthy was dismissed.

Reece Jones' Story.

For some reason the sight of the youth unwontedly agitated the girl, and for a moment she was obliged to drop upon the hall settle until she recovered her equilibrium.

"What is it?" she asked breathlessly. "I want to see Edith Jarvice," returned the lad.

"That is my name—Gervaise. Hurry, please; tell me what it is you want."

The lad's name was Reece Jones. His father, Hiram, was a farmer residing near the village of Eastview, some twenty miles north of Williamsboro.

Last Wednesday evening about dusk his father was loading a wagon with wood in the tract of timber on his farm, when he was astonished to see off among the trees a lady approaching him.

She appeared to be wandering aimlessly and as she drew nearer Jones observed that she seemed to be dazed and on the very verge of falling from exhaustion.

News of Dorothy Day

To add to his bewilderment, her dress, which had once been white, was of a rich and expensive material that was far beyond the pale of anything within his experience, but terribly torn and bedraggled and covered with burrs and mud, and her hair, of a wondrous golden hue, was half broken from its fastenings, and resting, sadly tangled, on her shoulders. She wore no other head covering.

When Jones neared her hand she gave him a terrified look and fainted dead away. He was at the same time aware of her mind, and calling constantly for Edith Jarvice.

There was no doubt in Edith's mind regarding the identity of "the strange lady." Beyond peradventure it was Dorothy Day.

Edith Decides to Go

Wednesday evening it was that Farmer Jones and found her, miles from Williamsboro; and she answered all his questions in her wedding gown and frail satin slippers. The possibility was too awful to contemplate.

And the poignancy of Dorothy's distressing condition came to Edith in a sudden overwhelming gush of feeling that left her wholly disregardful of the embarrassed Reece. She only was unrestrainedly to a fit of weeping.

Dispensing with the services of her maid, she dressed for the long ride with nervous, eager haste and soon was on the boy were tearing madly in the direction of Eastview.

"How far, Reece?" she ducked her head a moment to inquire, for the mind shield was of small account.

"Fo'-teen miles I'd call it, mum, lo' the theese," Reece shouted.

"Good road?"

"Fa'r road, m'am; straight as a stretched bellin' wire an' smooth as the inside of a beast rubber."

Edith Finds Dorothy

The car, long, low and rakish, with all the signs of its smart newness hid beneath a coat of dust and grime, was inconsiderately abandoned under the wistespreading branches of a patriarch among apple trees, almost at the Jones doorstep.

Mrs. Jones herself conducted Edith at once to a small but neat sleeping chamber. The good lady's manner betrayed a consuming curiosity with Edith, of course, was obliged to ignore.

"You you've been very kind," the girl faltered, pausing at the door; "but pray leave us together for the present."

Regretfully, but with unabated cheerfulness, Mrs. Jones went down the stairs.

All quiver with agitation—nervously expectant that hope was about to be realized, fearfully apprehensive that she was to be doomed to bitter disappointment—Edith was obliged to pause until she stilled the wild beating of her heart.

He Reads the Lines of a Satanic Hand

By IRVING R. BACON

PROFESSOR POLYDORE had grown remiss in the observance of one of the few of his New Year's resolutions when he chanced to meet and read the hand of an individual who filled him with so great terror that his forthwith renewed his good resolves, and the himself is authority for it has not broken a single one of them since.

The occasion in question was doubly memorable, as he had a big tooth extracted —so big a tooth, in fact, that the dentist advised him to take laughing gas. While preparing to administer the gas the dentist explained to Polydore that he would occasionally say, "Raise your hands," and when Polydore ceased to obey this command the dentist would know he was under the influence of the gas and ready for the operation.

From where he sat Polydore saw on the opposite sire of the street a large sign, "Smith & Co." He glued his eyes upon this, determined to use it as an index of his condition. For as long as he could see the sign he could feel sure he was still conscious.

Polydore Hits Upon a Ruse

He kept inhaling the gas for what appeared to him an extraordinary long time and began to wonder whether it would ever take effect at all.

At this juncture of affairs Polydore hit upon a ruse: When the dentist again droned forth his "Raise your hands," he did not obey. What was his surprise, however, to hear the dentist continue to repeat over and over again "Raise your hands."

Polydore was now thoroughly alarmed. He began to fear the dentist would fill him so full of the laughing gas as to cause him to explode. He languished that his hands, disobediently to his will, might be raising themselves automatically. To prevent this he firmly grasped the arms of the chair. But, oh, horror! Again and again the dentist, in a seemingly sonorous and supperannuative tone, kept repeating: "Now raise your hands, raise your hands."

Suddenly the "Smith & Co." sign across the street vanished, and there came a loud jangling of bells and a cry of "All aboard!" And Polydore found himself on the platform of a railroad station and swept along irresistibly by a madly struggling crowd toward a train.

That Terrible Hand

In front of his face there was thrust a hand, and, despite the shoving and crushing of the swaying mob, he could not put note the hand. It was of the most unusual markings he had ever seen. The heart line—the uppermost of the three principal lines that cross a palm from side to side, was entirely absent, which, in connection with other mark, indicated a total lack of heart qualities. Among the other evil indications was an excessively gilded thatline, criss-crossed. Mount of Saturn, as the protuberance at the base of the riddle finger is called. This showed malignity and cynical cruelty. To added to which was the boundless selfishness shown by the ghastly white, grilled Mount of the Moon—this name which palmists give to the protuberance in the lower part of the palm, directly opposite the ball of the thumb.

A terror, such as he had never before experienced, took possession of Polydore. He looked at the face of the owner of the hand, and there say, in the frightfully sinister features the confirmation of his worst fears.

"Satan!" gasped Polydore.

Polydore Tries in Vain to Pray

"At last I have you where you can't escape me," exclaimed the fiery-faced, leering demon.

In vain Polydore tried to pray. His mind was in a chaotic condition. Fright paralyzed all his mental faculties. He strove fruitlessly to arrange his confused thoughts. Not an aspiration would come to his mind.

Struggle as he would, he could not recall even the name of the Deity. He felt that if he could only utter one word of contrition, of regret, for his sins, all might yet be well.

"Hiss!" hissed the freak. "You had your chances on earth and missed it. Now you're mine—mine for all eternity, together with all the rest of this crew."

At this moment, just as Polydore was about to be pushed aboard the train, the jangle of bells was heard again, and the same voice which had at first shouted "All aboard!" now thundered, "Here we are—all off!"

He Blesses the Dentist

Wearily Polydore opened his eyes. The "Smith & Co." sign again came into view, and standing in front of him Polydore saw the dentist holding aloft the forceps in which was gripped a big-pronged tooth.

"God bless you," exclaimed Polydore, throwing his arms around the dentist. "I never felt so happy to see any one in all my life!"

TO-DAY'S BEST STORY

THE lodger's pet aversion was cats, and he cherished a special grudge against a feline which sometimes shared his meals without his consent.

Just as he was preparing for bed he caught a sight of a suspicious hump under the counterpane.

"The brute!" he muttered, and his eyes gleamed murder as he reached for one of the ten-pound dumbbells with which he was wont to toy each morning.

Stealthily he approached the bed. Then —thud!

And one of the items on his next week's bill was: "To one hot water bottle, $1.25."

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A DANGEROUS FRIENDSHIP

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About a year ago I was introduced to a young lady, who is a neighbor of mine, and we have become great friends.

Lately I have not her almost every morning while going to business, and at night when returning home.

Now, Miss Fairfax, I would like to know, whether this young lady would feel insulted if I send her a present for her birthday, as she is engaged to be married to a young man who lives about 400 miles from New York. As I would not want her to think that I am crazy about her and want her to give up her beau for me.

I do love her very much and would marry her any day, but would never think of making any trouble between her and her sweetheart, no matter how much I loved her, as long as she was engaged.

I THINK it would be wisey not to send her so often and I would not send her the present. Her fiance might object to you doing so and it would not be right to take advantage of his absence in any way. This friendship cannot bring you any happiness and it may make serious trouble.

Fog Horn Tales

Captain Pinochle and His "Charity Voyage"

By HANK.

"IN these days," said the Pilot, after Captain Pinochle had released the cork of a downward pull on which caused the tug horn to send a blast from the lighthouse over the ocean, "charity seems to be softening hardened hearts and opening the purses of the wealthy. If there is one thing that there can't be too much of it is charity."

"There can be too much of anything, charity as well as everything," answered the captain, "and particularly do I know dat charity dere can be too much of under some conditions of vich I haf hat experience."

"I suppose you are referring to that quarter I borrowed from you last week," answered the Pilot sensitively. "If I had known you were going to bring that up I wouldn't have asked you for it."

"Nein, nein," protested the Captain, "my remark hat noddings to do mit der quarter vich to you vass welcome from me. I vass simply thinking of der trip I made in der Pinochen through der Southern seas vun year ven der vass so many big storms, vich right after sunset."

"Well," said the Pilot, somewhat appeased, "what was the case, I apologize. But what had that trip to do with charity?"

"Vell, I vill tell you," said Captain Pinochle, as he sat down in his great chair in the lighthouse room and blew a big cloud of smoke into the air, "ve vass in a wreck near by. I could see der Western Indies vun Vinter mit a miscellaneous cargo, ven vun day ve ran into a storm for dree weeks. It vass der vorst storm dot effer vass.

"Der vas vun ting dot happened vass ven Hans, my ship's boy, called out dot der vass a wreck nearby. I could see der poor sailors clinging to something dot dit not look very much like a ship, so at der risk of dere lives my men put out in a boat and safed dem, twelve of dem in all and a monkey.

"Dot vas all right, but der next day ve see a small boat drifting around der ocean mit six more wrecked sailors in it, vich ve also rescue, und dot afternoon ve pick up eight more clinging to a life raft.

Der Vorst Storm

"Vell, I vould haf got along all right mit dem, but der day after dot six vimmen and eight men on annoder schooner dot vas sinking call to me for help und I hat not der heart to forsake dem. So der vere rescued und a'so came on board taking thirty-four nere, six vimmen und vun monkey on der ship, vich ve hat not counted on ven ve started on der voyage.

"I did der best I could for dem, but dree days after der cook came to me und said he hat only enough vitties left for vun day more. Der ship wrecked people vere eating der ship ould und der monkey, der cook said, vass der biggest diet dot he ever saw.

They Ate the Cargo

"As it hannened ve vere carrying a cargo of bananas, so after all der food hat gone I told der cook to open up der hatch und feed everybody on der cargo. So for two veeks I hat bananas baked, fried, stewed, roasted and pickled, so dot nefer since haf I been able to see a banana vidout much disgust.

"Vell, I made full speed for der nearest port, but before ve arrifed all der cargo hat been eaten up, und I vass so sick from der bananas dot I could nefer eat vun again. Und dot is vot I call too much charitability vot vass true I would agree mit you," said the Pilot.

"Not true," bellowed the Captain in rage, "vot dare you mean?"

"Why, here you've been telling me all dis talk about not ever being able to eat bananas any more," answered the Pilot, "und there's one sticking out of your pocket now. What have you got to say to dat?"

But the Captain's only reply was to reach for a hard pull on the cord. "Boo-oo" blew the fog horn.

Oh, You Buckwheats! $25 in Cash Prizes for the Best Recipes

"Brown the wheats!" Ever hear that cry? Of course you have. But those wheats aren't much like the ones you used to get back on the farm or in your boyhood days. Are they, now?

However, New England housewives are coming to our rescue, and pretty soon we'll know all there is to know about buckwheat cakes.

The American will give $25 in cash prizes to the persons sending in the best recipes for buckwheat cakes.

You all know John Wiggins—that good-natured old chap whose blunders are always causing so much trouble for his society-climbing wife and daughters, in those funny pictures on the AMERICAN'S editorial page.

Well, John Wiggins was raised back on the farm, and when he was young he used to dispose of large platefuls of delicious buckwheat cakes.

But since he's "made his pile," and broken into society, "Maggie," his wife, has given up cooking, and John can't find any good buckwheats.

"Gosh, but I'd like some of those buckwheat cakes same's I used to eat," he confided to the editor of the AMERICAN. "I can't find a place around Boston where I can get the real stuff."

The AMERICAN offers $25 in cash prizes to the persons who send in the best recipes for buckwheat cakes, hoping that John Wiggins and many others will profit by the ideas and suggestions offered by AMERICAN readers.

The prizes are:

First prize, $10.

Second prize, $5.

And ten prizes of $1 each.

Address JOHN WIGGINS, BOSTON AMERICAN, Boston. Write on ONE side of paper only, and DO NOT pin letter sheets together.

Here are some of the best recipes received:

Every Year for Forty-five.

JOHN WIGGINS, Boston American:

Sir—Buy "genuine" buckwheat, grown on the "farm," not the patent "prepared article," to get the best results. Two large cups buckwheat; 1 cup wheat flour; 1 yeast cake dissolved in warm water; 2 tablespoons molasses (baking molasses preferred); 1 teaspoon salt. Mix all in warm water; set to "raise" over night. Have been using this recipe every year for 45 years.

MRS. EMMA NIEMAN.
No. 100 G street, Boston.

Sour Milk in These.

JOHN WIGGINS, Boston American:

Sir—We find these to be the best ever: Sour milk cakes—One quart of "loppered" or of buttermilk, three cups of sifted whole wheat flour, one cup of Indian meal, one "rounded" teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of molasses. Sift flour, salt and meal into a bowl. In another mix the milk, molasses and soda. Stir these last to a foam and pour into the hollow in the middle of the flour. Work down the flour into the liquid until you have a batter, and beat hard with upward strokes, two minutes. Bake at once. These are cheap, easy and extremely good cakes.

MRS. A. H. DAVISON.
No. 7 Carmel street, Chelsea.

Says Mother Makes 'Em So.

JOHN WIGGINS, Boston American:

Sir—This is mother's way: One quart of buckwheat flour, one pint of new beer, one gill liquid yeast, three tablespoons of molasses, one teaspoonful of salt.

Mix the above ingredients to a smooth batter, put the batter into an earthern jug or pitcher, cover it with a folded towel and let it rise over night. In the morning bake the buckwheat cakes on a hot iron griddle with just enough fat to prevent burning; or on a soapstone griddle without any fat, and serve cakes hot, in little piles.

I think this recipe will be a success if followed like the above.

MISS ELLA HOBBS.
No. 18 Howell street, Dorchester.

John Accepts of Course.

JOHN WIGGINS, Boston American:

Sir—Please accept the following receipt for buckwheat cakes.

One and a half cups of old-fashioned buckwheat, one-half cup of Indian meal, one-half cup of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half cake of compressed yeast dissolved in one-half cup of warm water.

Mix contents with warm water and set to rise over night in warm place. In the morning take one teaspoonful of salaratus dissolved in warm water and mix with ingredients. If too thick, thin with warm water. Butter after taking cakes from the iron.

MRS. D. CHASE.
No. 8 Willow avenue, W. Somerville.

John, How's This?

JOHN WIGGINS, Boston American:

Sir—Here's my buckwheat recipe: One quart of buckwheat flour, two eggs, 2 heaping teaspoonfuls of sugar, four teaspoonfuls of Royal baking powder, one quart of milk, pinch of salt. Have pan hot and keep greased with fat pork.

MRS. JOHN GRIMLY.

Puts in "A Little More."

JOHN WIGGINS, Boston American:

Sir—My recipe is very good for Buckwheat cakes: two cups of milk or water, two cups of flour or little more, two eggs, one tablespoonful of molasses, one and one-half baking powder, little salt, very good.

CATHERINE McCARTHY.

Made 'Em for Forty Years.

JOHN WIGGINS, Boston American:

Sir—I have made buckwheat cakes for over forty years and have never found any better recipe than two cups of buckwheat, two cups of sour milk, one teaspoonful soda, one tablespoonful sugar, one-quarter teaspoonful salt; mix and place on hot griddle. When done, serve with butter and pure maple syrup.

The Voices of the City

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

THE voices of the city—they call across the seas.
The wandering exile harks for them in every alien breeze.
They speak of teeming, throbbing life, of failure or distress,
Or strike the virile, vibrant note of struggle and success.
They echo in the rumble of the distant waterfall,
From out the desert's silence persistently they call:

"Hi stop that truck, you red-haired mutt or it's to jail for youse!"
"Hey, buy an evening paper, Bill! De latest racin' news!"
"Banan! Who buya de banan!" "You pay or you don't ride!"
"Beef and—two bright eyes on the toast, wit' butter on the side!"
"Don't drive that taxi through the door. This ain't no toroughfare!"
"Yep! Dudley Street and Forest Hills! Come on! Step lively, there!"

You catch them in the whisper of the tides that ebb and flow
Among the ice-crowned crags where the igloced Esquimaux.
They murmur with the tropic streams that ripple at the Line,
Where hospitable Hottentots invite you to dine.
On Patagonia's arid strand, Mount Everest's argent dome,
They still will call you from afar, those well-known sounds from home!

"The five-three train don't leave to-night till seven forty-four!"
"Move on! This sidewalk ain't a park!" "Shine! Shine, sir! Polish? What?"
"Hot dog, here, boys, right off the stove, with sauerkraut! Red hot!"
And underneath them all there runs one contrapuntal air,
"Next station Dudley Street! All out! Biff! Biff! Step LIVELY, there."

Being Too Accommodating

A SHORT STORY
By KENNETT HARRIS

"HE'S a right clever boy, Pete is," remarked the storekeeper, as the obliging young man staggered out of the door under a hundred-pound burden of flour.

"That's what all the neighbors say, 'ceptin' them as calls him a meddlin' young fool," observed Luke Hislop, from Hoop-pole. "I reckon you'd better go out an make sure he's put that flour in the right wagon, Rufe."

The storekeeper seemed to think the hint worth taking, for he hurried out. When he returned his face was red and he was muttering to himself something about "punkin-head" and "coots."

"Sure enough," he said to Hislop. "He'd drapped it into Perry Hutchinson's wagon. If Perry'd druv off with it onct, I might have whistled for the pay. I'd better toted it out myself in the fust place. Not but what the boy meant well, he added, seeing that Hancock was cocking a derisive eye in his direction.

"Sure he meant well," agreed Sol Baker, "a plague-taked sight better than I'd have meant. I never seen the day I felt I had a call to tote other folkses' flour sacks."

"Or do nothin' else for nobuddy," supplemented Hancock. "I reckon that's so."

"Not if their own backs were strong enough," returned Baker. "Why would I?"

"Now you're talkin'," said Hislop. "Why would you?"

"I b'lieve in lendin' a helpin' hand jest the same," said Baker.

"Providin' you c'n get good security that it'll be paid back with the interest that's due on it," suggested Hancock. "Well, don't get on your ear, Sol. I was on'y coddin'. You're all right. If I wanted any accommodation, I'd about as soon go to you as I would to Rufe—an' feel jest about as sure of gittin' it. In some respects you're a heap like a feller I knowed back in Norway, name o' Clayton Jacks, Sol."

He Was Accommodating

"Was he as good lookin' as I am?" asked Baker, slightly mollified.

"He was a right good lookin' feller, yes," replied Hancock. "But it was his accommodatin' disposition that would have reminded me of you if I'd knowed you then. He was some like Pete, too—that way. He'd do anythin' for a neighbor from helpin' him cut seed taters to loanin' him money 'ce'se he didn't have no money to lend; them obligin' fellers never do; but he'd have lent it all right if he'd had it. What he did have you was allus welcome to.

"You'd go to him an' say, 'Clayt, my hoss has gone lame on me and' I'm right in the middle of my plowin', so I'd take it kind of you if you'd drap what you're a-doin' an loan me your hoss.' Clayton'd say, 'Why, cert'nly. I reckon you'd better take the team while you're about it, an' my plow's a better one than what yours is. Sposen you take the plow as well, an' let me do the plowin', too. 'Taint no trouble.'

"Or he'd be drivin' to town on some business or another an' he'd pull up when he came to a neighbor's house an' holler to know if he couldn't do some arrant. A woman 'u'd come to the door an' she'd say, 'Why, I did allow I'd take some butter an' aigs into Spofford's to trade, but the butter hain't churned yet, so I reckon you caint do me no good.'

"'I ain't in no sech a rush as all that,' Clayton'd say, an' he'd hop out of the wagon an' hitch his hosses an' go down to the spring house an' do the churnin'. Then the woman 'u'd give him a list of things to get in trade for the butter, an' he'd be so busy gettin' 'em that he wouldn't have time to 'tend to his own business an' would have to make another trip the next day."

He Had a Rival

"That's jest the way I am," Baker interpolated.

"O' co'se he was as willin' to oblige the gals as he was anybody else," Hancock resumed. "You ought to have seen Clayt at a picnic. He'd climb trees and hang swings an' set up tables an' tote water an' bile coffee an' clear away underbrush an' kill snakes an' put babies to sleep an' wash dishes an' judge foot races an' ever' livin' thing that there was—an' 'specially Letitia Hopkins. He made a partickler p'int of accommerdatin' Letitia.

"There was another feller—Orlando Peemiller—felt a good deal the same way about that gal as Clayt did, an' they both run about neck an' neck for quite a while.

"Letitia was like a young one in the middle of a teeterin' board. Fust she'd let one come up an' then the other, so's't they didn't neither one have any kick comin' or any solid satisfaction either. But you'll notice things allus has got to come to a settlement soon or late, an' fin'ly one evenin' both Clayt an' Orlando got to Letty's house at the same time an' commenced to set each other out. Letty was nice as pie to both of 'em. Seemed like she hadn't made up her own mind.

"After a while they called supper an' neither one o' them boys 'u'd go, so there wasn't nothin' to do but to ask 'em to stay.

"After supper they went out on the po'ch again, all three of 'em, Letitia talkin' an' laffin' full of steam, an' Orlando settin' an' grittin' his teeth an' Clayt settin' an' grittin' his'n.

Why She Took Orlando

"I reckon they'd have been settin' there yet only after they'd been there a couple of hours Old Man Hopkins comes along.

"'Which one o' you boys wants to he'p me drench a sick cow?' he sings out.

"'I'm too strong for light work,' says Orlando, puttin' his feet up on the rail an' leanin' back.

"'I'll he'p you o' co'se, Mr. Hopkins,' says Clayt, jumpin' up.

"Well, Clayt allowed he'd done a smart thing, makin' hisself solid with the old man, but when they got through an' he went back to the po'ch, Orlando an' Letitia was so clost together there wasn't no tellin' which from t'other. Letitia had done made up her mind.

"She said afterward that it was right noble in Clayt, but when it come to a ch'ice between her an' a sick cow, she expected to get the fust bid, also that there was a right smart of ailin' criters in this world an' she wouldn't know how much of Clayt's time they'd take up later on if she married him."

"She was right there," commented Baker.

"She was some right," agreed Hancock. "Clayt certainly did neglect his own family doin' kind actions for other folks, but Orlando never done a kind thing in or out of his family, so there you are."

"I reckon a man needs to be mod'rit in well doin' same's anything else," said the storekeeper. "I aim to keep to a happy medium."

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Great dissatisfaction with the situation at Washington has become evident on the part of leading investors. It also develops that some of the greatest banking houses have been liquidating. These houses have been talking hopefully of higher prices while selling stocks freely. This deception, now exposed, is certain to hurt the market. It is doubtful whether even dismissal of the Union Pacific litigation can give it more than a good rally.

$ $ $

The great financiers appear to be cashing in to make ready for a long vacation, during which the common people and the politicians are to run the country. For several years the Street has been talking of going on a strike just like labor unions. Maybe this is it.

$ $ $

When the Street became convinced that President Taft would make no announcement during the day of the dismissal of the Union Pacific litigation, it developed a rumor that he was preparing a sharp answer to the letter regarding the Steel Trust labor troubles written by President Gompers. When Taft was on the circuit bench he astonished the labor unions with a decision against them in the celebrated "Clover Leaf" Railroad case, and he made that decision one of his best arguments with labor men in his campaign for the Presidency. The Street expected a strong note of that character on the Steel Trust problem.

$ $ $

Disappointment is the keynote of the market. The administration at Washington will be compelled to dismiss the litigation against the Union Pacific by the terms of President Taft's special message to Congress. Directors of the Union Pacific have reason to believe that a decision has already been reached to dismiss the litigation, but they fear that political considerations may delay decisive action.

$ $ $

The Hill roads and St. Paul will undoubtedly have to reduce their dividends, as the Canadian roads are competing with them sharply for business. An increase of the Steel dividend is no longer expected.

$ $ $

Correspondingly encouraging, as a general factor, are the earnings of the Canadian Pacific. These are approaching the $100,000,000 mark; in fact, the ratio of receipts is running above that figure. The gross for November was the largest for any month in the company's history, totaling $9,075,063, as compared with $7,303,303 for the same month a year ago. At the same time the operating expenses showed no increase in anything like the same ratio—$5,383,623, as against $5,082,223 in 1908—making the net $3,602,337, as compared with $2,221,079 in November, 1908.

$ $ $

These figures include the railroad's services proper, but do not embrace the hotel, steamship or other avenues of revenue which are computed only at the end of the fiscal year. The computations so far indicate that the Canadian Pacific will far surpass the record of 1907, which then noted the high mark in both gross and net.

$ $ $

Gas stocks are a strong feature of the market. No official explanation is given for this strength. Unofficial explanation is that both stocks will increase their dividends, Brooklyn Union very materially. The gas stocks stood firm because they have real merit, and nobody appears to want to sell them. Another class of stocks represented by Colorado Fuel & Iron stand firm because the holders know that it would be useless to offer them for sale, as nobody wants them.

$ $ $

Great Northern Ore is strong because of the payment this week of $2,000,000 from the Steel Trust on account of ore royalties for the six months. Rock Island has let go again, the common stock making another attempt to reach its true level.

$ $ $

The reason for Pullman's creeping advance during the declines in the last two weeks is an extra dividend. Following the example of that other Morgan organization, the International Harvester Company, there is to be a division, or a partial division, of Pullman's very large surplus. This overplus approximates $27,000,000, against a capital stock of $100,000,000. The surplus, called commonly "quick assets," is immediately convertible into cash; indeed, $12,000,000 is on deposit at the banks, about $4,000,000 is in the form of accounts receivable and the rest in high-grade securities.

$ $ $

Since the end of the last fiscal year earnings have been at the rate of sixteen per cent., or exactly double the dividend payments. In 1909, the company earned a little over fourteen per cent., an increase of over eight per cent. compared with 1908. The last report showed a balance after dividends of $2,940,131—an increase of $1,158,562. In two years the working capital rose from $3,119,388 to about $12,000,000. In three years the company earned and paid eight per cent. on $26,000,000 additional stock and accumulated a surplus of $10,000,000. From the end of the financial year of 1908 the cash enhanced $4,000,000.

$ $ $

The surplus on hand and the largely increased earnings reported currently mean that the very handsome distribution will be made soon. The assurance is made doubly sure by the fact that J. P. Morgan is virtually the financial custodian of the organization and Morgan's policy of rewarding stockholders as largely and as frequently as possible is proverbial. He himself is a large stockholder. So are the Vanderbilts.

$ $ $

Several facts stand out in opposition to the theory that the big people are planning to desert the market. J. P. Morgan has undertaken in the copper merger a task greater than the organization of the Steel Trust. The Steel Trust was organized to save an important industry from ruin, and nearly anything could be justified in that connection. But with copper metal selling freely above 13 cents a pound no copper company can claim that it needs to be saved. The public has a notion that somebody is going to make a good deal of money out of the copper merger, and Morgan will have to make a lively stock market to float the new securities successfully.

$ $ $

At the annual meeting of the Federal Trust Company, directors were re-elected with exception of Francis Gray and William F. Hammett, resigned. Charles B. Strecker was added to the board.

$ $ $

Messrs. Thompson, Towle & Co. issue a valuable book on dividend paying stocks. It contains miscellaneous data of value to the investor.

$ $ $

Paine, Webber & Co. have a private wire dispatch from Butte stating that the North Butte has cut the Jessie vein on the 2,100-foot level and found rich ore.

$ $ $

Advices from Houghton, Mich., state that Centennial has made a small reduction in its underground force, and has temporarily ceased shaft sinking. It is planned to give more attention to lateral openings in the bottom of the mine, particularly to those northward towards South Kearsarge, in which direction lies the best ground by far opened in this mine.

$ $ $

The Boston Stock Exchange has admitted to its unlisted department the shares of the South Utah Mines & Smelters Co. Ticker Code S. O.

NORTH BUTTE LOCAL LEADER

STATE STREET, Jan. 19.—The street found a new leader in copper shares this morning in North Butte. Advices that a 8½ per cent. copper ore body had been cut in the so-called Jessie vein brought good-sized buying orders, which caused the price to jump from an opening at 45½ to 48¼, but it subsequently fell back to 46½ on a dispute as to whether the information was authentic or not.

Lake and North Lake attracted as much attention as ever and the former rose 2¼ points from the opening to 91⅛. From this it reached almost the amount of the advance. North Lake spurted to 19¼, which is its record price. There are no new developments from the Lake Superior district.

After early advances prices, as a rule, ran off on profit taking. Mohawk lost almost a point to 70⅞ and Amalgamated fell from 84½ to 83½. American Telephone was freely offered for New York account and after touching 138⅜ it fell to 137.

STOCKS SHOW GOOD GAINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—London sent over prices in American stocks showing as high as a point advance in many leaders. This encouraged a strong opening in New York. Southern Pacific showed a gain of two points in the first few minutes of trading, with Union Pacific, Steel and the gas shares materially higher. The Hill stocks, however, were heavy, with liquidation apparent in both Northern Pacific and Great Northern.

The strength of the market was due undoubtedly to further rumors of dismissal of the government litigation against Union Pacific.

PEASE MFG. CO., 522 Pease bldg., Buffalo, N. Y.

FULTON told Napoleon he could build a steamboat. Napoleon didn't believe it. By refusing to investigate, Bonaparte failed to realize the greatest ambition of his life, the invasion of England.

To every young man who can qualify, the United States Navy offers a chance, a chance to see some of the United States, maybe foreign countries, a chance to become strong, erect, athletic; a chance to save money, as most of his expenses are paid; a chance for promotion to rank of officer; perhaps a chance to learn a trade, but a sure chance to learn by travel, study and high class associates; and should he wish to leave the Navy he will be in fine training for life's fight.

By refusing to believe it, by refusing to investigate, you, like Bonaparte, may fail to realize your greatest ambition, the ambition to win success.

The Navy Department doesn't urge any young man to become a bluejacket. It only urges him to investigate Navy opportunities.

Will you refuse to investigate or will you talk it over with a recruiting officer today? You will find him obliging and glad to tell you everything. Ask him all the questions you wish. That's what he is there for. Should you decide not to enlist you will have done no harm.

If you can't call, write the Recruiting Office for an interesting free book which tells all about pay, play, work in the Navy.

FIGHTING PIANO TRUST

A good customer and friend of ours writes in and asks us if we are still fighting the Piano Trust. Yes, we are—and are not letting up for a minute. Occasionally we are asked to compromise—to patch up a truce—to agree to raise and hold prices, but none of it for us. SELL PIANOS and enter into no agreements nor combinations with the Trust—that's our policy. We cut prices and sell—sell—sell. We go it alone. They call us the price scalpers and other pretty names, which we can't publish, but we fight and cut and sell. Lots of new ones to be scalped this week.

President Taft on Centralization

The President was, of course, right in saying—before the National Civic Alliance in Washington—that the growth of federal powers is mainly due to the growth of interstate commerce.

When the constitution was adopted the commerce that crossed State lines was only a quarter of the whole; now it is three-quarters.

The vast and unitary commercial and industrial system that has grown up within a century—making this age, above all others, an age of organized business—has knit the whole country together in indissoluble bonds and exalted the power of the general government.

The centralization of politics is an inevitable consequence of the centralization of business. And the present move of the Administration for a commerce court and federal incorporation is in the nature of a foregone conclusion following in the wake of actual events.

A system of business—national, organic and as complex as the circulatory system of the human body—cannot possibly be controlled by any power that is less than national. And the political struggle for this national control—which is now on in Washington—is in effect a struggle to vindicate the sovereignty of the people over a gigantic commercial oligarchy that threatens to overtop all government and all law.

We must now establish the principle of the federal incorporation and control of the great commercial domain, or else haul down the standard of political sovereignty and suffer the nation to be ruled, not by its citizenship, but by a combination of private corporations—the creatures of the several States.

In his speech yesterday on the problem of working out a practical uniformity of State laws in certain fields of legislation, the President was right again in saying that if the States would preserve their local powers they must exercise them. For it is a law of nature—showing itself in the life of all living things—that every faculty declines when it is disused.

The political virility of our race requires that every private power shall, somehow, be subjected to public law. There is a vast field of human interests over which the States have primary jurisdiction. They ought to exercise their power in this field, and so keep that power fresh and strong.

The conference on uniformity of State laws that began in Washington Monday, and the conference of the Governors of the States, which began there yesterday, are signs of the arousing of the States to the demand of the times—in such matters as child labor, marriage and divorce, and such a simplification of court procedure as shall abolish the scandal of legal delays and put the poor on a legal level with the rich.

But, for the work of controlling the wide-spreading interstate trusts, the individual States are manifestly inadequate.

Statehood for New Mexico and Arizona

Arizona and New Mexico are better prepared for Statehood—by every criterion of population and development—than Colorado was when it came into the Union in 1876, or than any other territory that has been admitted since that time.

It is questionable indeed whether any State has brought its new star to the galaxy of the original thirteen accompanied by so many graces of civilization as these two territories have now to offer.

By every tradition of our policy both were thoroughly fit for Statehood fifteen years ago, and their exclusion from the sisterhood has been in violation of the spirit of the law.

When the Northwest Territory was turned over to the federal jurisdiction by the State of Virginia, the law of its organization made Statehood a matter of right, to be claimed by the several sections of the territory as soon as they should attain a certain degree of development. It was the same with the Louisiana Purchase and the Mexican cessions to the national domain. Statehood for the developed territory has always been a matter of democratic right—not of Congressional grace.

Arizona and New Mexico have been kept out of their birthright for many years by the sheer stubbornness of the Senate. Three times at least a vote for the admission of Arizona to separate Statehood has passed the House of Representatives—to be held up in the Senate. How much of the opposition of the Senate is due to the fact that the Republican Senators do not wish to see four new Democratic United States Senators?

Joint Statehood is a subterfuge—never intended in good faith.

The present session of Congress should, as a matter of course, and without debate or ado, pass a bill for separate Statehood.

It is said in Washington that Senator Beveridge has decided to withdraw his opposition and will move for separate Statehood in the Senate. It is time.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

MA'S brother Joshia was playing poker welcome to. Keep right on winning as with Pa last nite. Pa was telling long as you can.

Ma early in the evening that the Yes, sed Pa, as I was saying beefour, a way to play poker was to stay out until reel gambler is born, not made. I herard sed had something & when you got a good poker from my dear old dad, who was a hand to play it like a feend. My dear fine performer. He had one of them frozen brother used to play a good galm of poker, faces, so cold that it could pull nails out sed ma. Dident you, Josh. of the side of a house. And you can take

I wud dearly luv to play poker with you it from me, kind folks, that he used to dear brother, sed Pa. Nothing in wash in very, very handsome. the world wud give me moar pleshure. So Pa & Joshia started to play stud poker, because Pa sed stud poker was a better galm to play two handed than draw poker.

Ma & me watched the galm, & at first Pa won quite a little munny from Joshia. He felt very good every time he took a pot, & wen Pa feels good he talks all the time. Gambling, Pa sed, is a queer galm. Only a very few of us play poker right. To be a successful gambler, Pa sed, requires a grate deel of nerve & a keen mind. Anybody can lose munny, Pa sed, but it takes a hero to win munny these days. The way I always win, Pa sed, is not generally known, & I dont think I shall tell my system. As for this brother of yures, Pa Pa, I herard sing from you, sed Ma, sed to Ma, he plays poker like a daughter of the American Revolushun. If you ever saw a snow-blind bat, Pa sed, you will realize the fact that Josh plays poker like a snow-blind bird. His munny is a gift, Pa sed, & I am almost ashamed to take it.

Don't be ashalmed, kid, sed Joshia to Pa (2) ways. Poor Pa. He never has so Any munny that you git from me you are luck and never wins nothing.

I am glad sure father knew something, sed Ma. I never gave him credit for much intelligence.

Just then Ma's brother won a big pot, & after that he won everything there was on the table. Pa's face kept girting longer & longer, & his stack of chips kept getting shorter & shorter. Ma felt kind of sory for Pa, but I think she wanted to see her brother win, at that. Well, kid, she sed to Pa, after he had lost all the chips he had, How do you like the heavy going? I guess friend brother is there, he can't he? How do you account for the fack that little Josh has copped all the kale. I wish you wuddent use slang, sed Pa, I herard sing from you, sed Ma.

Then Joshia asked Pa if he wanted to play any more, & Pa sed Yes, I will play no more. I think Ma's brother gave her back her munny after the galm. Pa will pay her back, too, so Ma will win two

Miss Kay (in street car)—It's really very kind of you, Mr. Crabbe, to give me your seat.
Mr. Crabbe—Not at all. We men are getting tired of being accused of never giving up our seats except to pretty girls.

The Wooden Indian's Story

By DON MARQUIS

Now all you cooks and carpenters, that make our breakfast food,
Give ear unto my tale and hear how I was turned to wood.

'Twas when I left my father's house, the larger world to see,
I boarded with a dame that fed much breakfast food to me;
At first I nearly starved because I'd never dined that way,
But very soon I felt my oats, and then I took to hay.

At first she used to pour stuff out of boxes on my plate,
Queer cereals mixed with sawdust—and I ate and ate, and ate;
And as the mania grew and grew the taste for wood grew more—
I threw away my dough to buy crates of excelsior.

One night I dreamed a dream wherein I was extremely fed,
And when I woke at dawn I found I'd eaten up my bed;
The land-ladie, she had me pinched, but I ate down my jail—
An outcast then, for I had gnawed quite through the social pale.

And still the craving grew and grew—the circus came to town,
And I attended with my teeth and ate the benches down;
I got to eating billboards, tomato cans and coats;
I boarded on the sidewalks and my dearest friends were goats.

A gradual change came over me, as you'd suspect it would,
And I became transformed to this—completely changed to wood;
Then put a wooden tomahawk into my outstretched hand,
And set me for an Indian sign before a segar stand.

This is the grewsome, wailsome tale how I was changed to wood
By careless cooks and carpenters that make our breakfast food.
